Promises to Work to 'Heal Wounds and Close Breach'

AGAIN HEADS A. F. L.

Next Year's Convention To be Held in San Francisco

Houston, Texas—(AP)—American Federation of Labor unions, armed for war but apparently anxious for peace in labor's internal strife, today turned over to their executive council for action the policy mandates of the fifty-eighth annual convention which adjourned last night.

Jammed into the program in an 11-day meeting that was dull and stormy by turns were a dozen controversial issues that called for action on the political and industrial fronts. The convention voted to meet in San Francisco in 1939.

After the tumult and debating over dualism and the New Deal in the closing days of the session, the convention closed on a "high note of peace." It was sounded by William Green in a speech accepting for the fifteenth time the presidency of the A. F. of L.

"I promise to you," Green said, "that I shall make every contribution that lies within my power toward the promotion of peace in the labor movement. I shall do what I can to heal the wounds and close the breach and untie the forces of labor."

His avowal to seek unity with the CIO followed convention action approving the continuation of the "war chest" special assessment levied a year ago for extensive organizing purposes and the adopting of a report on "secession and dualism" recommending that the council be authorized to "carry on the battle and at the same time stand ready to respond to any genuine appeal for peace."

Daniel J. Tobin, leader of 350,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and the lone outstanding advocate of immediate peace action by the leadership, said it might take a month or a year to reopen the unity negotiations with the CIO broken off last December after a tentative formula for peace had been reached.

Roosevelt May Help There still was a possibility, some sources indicated, that President Roosevelt may aid in bringing the two sides together, particularly in view of his message to the convention urging labor leaders to "make and keep the peace" and prevent the "reaction" which otherwise is bound to injure the workers themselves.

After the noisy ovation given him when he was elected, Green addressed an appeal to the International Ladies Garment Workers' union, the United Auto Workers' union, the United Textile Workers' union, and the Oil Field Workers' International to leave the CIO and return to their former affiliation with the A. F. of L.

The convention turned down resolutions asking A. F. of L. support for collective action by Democratic nations against aggressor nations, ordered the establishment of a new mental properties, and around the sailors' union of the Pacific, and voted to oppose congressional enactment of the Patman chain store tax bill.

Clausen in Attack Upon Growing U. S. Expenses

Chicago—(AP)—Fred H. Clausen of Houston, Wis., chairman of the United States Chamber of Commerce finance committee, today challenged "men charged with business management" and citizens at large to consider "how much government we can pay for."

In an address prepared for delivery at the silver jubilee convention of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, Clausen said that for the fiscal year, ending June 30, the government will spend nine billion dollars, the largest peace time expenditure.

Time On Your Hands?

There is a time for planting and a time to reap, to build and to tear down, to love and to hate. There's a time for birth and a time for death, for work and for relaxation—in fact, there is a specific time for everything. There is even a time for advertising and that time is NOW! Here is an ad that bears out that statement. It ran just three times and the house was rented.

Wallace Asks Farm Backing For Program

Wants Support for 'Best Farm Program Agriculture Ever Had'

SEES ADDED GAINS

Credits Act With Preventing Big Decline In Farmer's Income

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace urged corn belt farmers today to fight for the "best farm program agriculture ever had" and cautioned them to beware of substitutes offered with the sole purpose of destroying the present farm act.

Wallace told a meeting of farm leaders and AAA committeemen the agricultural adjustment act of 1933, while not perfect, does represent a complete charter of farm equality and is capable of being improved with experience.

The secretary credited the farm act with preventing a big drop in farm cash income and farm buying power. The drop in income, he said, had been held to about 12 per cent of last year's total and the reduction of buying power to 9 per cent.

"In the face of a business situation in which factory employment and payrolls have been down over 30 per cent," he said, "to hold farm income so nearly steady is a real achievement."

Asks Tax Relief

Mayor James R. Law of Madison pleaded for legislation which will obtain property tax relief for cities and villages when he addressed the League of Wisconsin Municipalities in convention at Madison today. He declared cities and villages have been unable to make major reductions because of state and county requirements.

Growing Property Tax Load Scored By Madison Mayor

Madison—(AP)—Mayor James R. Law, Madison, today asked the League of Wisconsin Municipalities to sponsor legislation which will obtain property tax relief for cities and villages.

"If the legislature was required by the constitution or by statute to raise the money itself every time it added expense for the county or city, the legislature would be reluctant to approve the increase expenditure," Mayor Law said.

There would be fewer promises and far less spending. City officials would not have to sit with their fingers crossed, wondering how many more expenses every session of the legislature would add to the city's budget.

Mayor Law asserted the legislature has ordered many mandatory expenditures that must be met by local property taxpayers and at the same time has withdrawn public utility, bank assessments and automobiles from the local tax base.

Action Necessary

"Madison has 22,000 autos today, but the state aid in compensation for removing autos from the personal property tax roll is based on the 1930 registration of 13,000 vehicles," he said.

The Madison mayor predicted that if public officials do not change the law, the city's budget will be a disaster.

Jury Chosen for Espionage Trial

Former U. S. Army Sergeant Changes His Plea to Guilty

New York—(AP)—A jury of ten men and two women was chosen in an hour and a half today for the federal government's trial of three persons accused of being members of a spy ring which sold United States military secrets to a foreign government.

The jury was seated after Guenther Gustav Rumrich, former United States army sergeant, a fourth defendant, had unexpectedly changed his plea from innocent to guilty.

Federal Judge John C. Knox deferred sentence until after the trial. Rumrich will testify for the government, his counsel said.

Rumrich was alleged by the government to have stolen a military aviation code.

Rumrich's co-defendants are Johanna Hofmann, 26, former hairdresser on the liner Europa, accused of having acted as a messenger for the so-called spy ring; Otto Herman Voss, 36, a naturalized German formerly employed at the Seversky airplane plant at Farmingdale, Long Island; and Eric Glaser, 23, another naturalized German who was attached to the United States army as a private.

Roosevelt Is Studying U.S. Defense Needs

Estimate of Next Year's Budget Is Awaiting Outcome

PLAN IS PREPARED

Army and Navy are Ready to Submit New Proposals

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he was making an entirely new study of the nation's national defense needs and that until it was completed he could not estimate next year's budget.

The president told a press conference he could not comment on the new budget because new technical developments in national defense measures required a complete restudy of defensive requirements.

He said the reason for the reassessment of these needs began to take shape about a year ago because of information coming in in connection with world events. He said the question was forced to a head in the last month. In response to a question he said the new information was of a technical rather than a political nature.

One of the things being studied, he said, was that of mass production of war equipment, including airplanes, power and other items. He said the production question was something new and intimated one of the phases to be studied was standardization of plane production, which some countries already have adopted.

Oppose Special Work for Deans

Two Regents Question University Policy of Lending Professors

Madison—(AP)—Two members of the University of Wisconsin board of regents today questioned the university's policy of lending its deans and professors to the state and federal governments for special work.

The board approved a half time arrangement for Dr. William J. Blackwelder, professor of neurophysiology, who will assist in organizing the new state department of mental hygiene, and Dr. W. W. Kelly, Green Bay, inquired whether the necessary adjustment would cause any interruption in university work.

President C. A. Dykstra said arrangements had been made to fill Dr. Blackwelder's place and that where adjustments are not found possible, releases are not granted. Dr. Blackwelder will receive half of his $3,600 yearly salary from the university, the state to pay the other half.

Regent A. C. Backus, Milwaukee, said that absence of Dean Lloyd K. Garrison, who is in the university law school, Dean Garrison was employed with the federal labor board on leave of absence and this year is studying labor conditions in England, Backus said.

"What it amounts to is that we are running the law school without a dean, when Garrison is not here," Backus stated. "I am not saying this in criticism of Dean Garrison. He is a good man and that is why I want him here."

Extend Deadline for Bids on Battleships

Washington—(AP)—The complexities of building 35,000-ton battleships threatened delay today for the navy's expansion program.

For the second time the navy has extended the period for filing bids on three battleships for which congress has appropriated initial funds. At the request of shipbuilders the date for opening bids was advanced from Oct. 19 to Nov. 2.

Naval circles heard that since no battleships have been constructed in this country for 15 years, builders needed more time for estimates and negotiations with sub-contractors.

Costing $70,000,000 or more each, the new ships are expected to require four and a half years to complete. More than 6,000 skilled workers ultimately will be employed on each.

Hungarians Delay Mobilization 'In Interests of Peace'

Czechoslovakia Promises 'Loyal Attitude' To Reich

ENVOY AT BERLIN

Fuehrer Regrets Delay In Settling Hungarian Issue

Munich—(AP)—An official German announcement today said that Frantisek Chvalkovsky, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, had given Reichsfuehrer Hitler assurances that Czechoslovakia in future will adopt "a loyal attitude" toward Germany.

The announcement came some two hours after Hitler had received the Czechoslovak envoy in the Fuehrerhaus, scene of the historic Munich conference which two weeks ago set the seal on Czechoslovakia's dismemberment at Hitler's request.

The official account of the meeting said the fuehrer had expressed profound regret that the question of Czechoslovakia's Hungarian minority had not yet been solved and had told Chvalkovsky that he hoped an amicable solution of this problem soon would be found.

Informed circles said Hitler, in his 90 minute conversation with the Prague envoy, "took occasion to discuss all questions involving both states."

Women, Children In Canton Will be Sent to Interior

Japanese Army Moving Closer to South China Metropolis

Hong Kong—(AP)—The civilian population of the teeming South China coast started a mass exodus into the interior today in flight from heavy Japanese air raids and advancing ground forces of the invaders.

Unconfirmed Chinese dispatches from Canton said Waichow, immediate objective of the Japanese, was burning furiously after one of the heaviest air raids yet seen in South China. Casualties were estimated at 1,000.

Japanese warplanes were said to have flown over Canton, dropping leaflets demanding surrender of that metropolis by tomorrow under threat of "complete and thorough bombing."

Canton began mass evacuation of 400,000 women and children. A Japanese force of 40,000 moved closer, capturing Tamshui, 12 miles from Bias bay, where it landed Wednesday.

Incensed bombing and shelling left Tamshui in ruins. The invaders drove relentlessly toward the important garrison city of Waichow, 82 miles east of Canton and 35 miles north of Hong Kong.

Date Is Set for Second Oil Trial

Number of Defendants Depends on Outcome of Mandamus Action

Chicago—(AP)—Federal Judge C. Lindley today set May 8, 1939, as the tentative date for the second trial of the huge oil conspiracy case in Madison, Wis.

The number of defendants who will appear before him then will depend on the outcome of a mandamus action brought by the government and an appeal taken by 17 defendants whose convictions were sustained by Judge Patrick Stone at Madison.

Thirty individuals and 16 companies were brought to trial before Judge Stone on charges of conspiracy to raise and fix gasoline prices in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

All were convicted by a jury last January, but in July, Judge Stone sustained the convictions of 17 defendants, set aside the verdict and freed 11, and granted new trials to 16 on the grounds they were linked to the alleged conspiracy only by circumstantial evidence.

The 17 defendants have appeals pending. The 12 firms among them were fined $5,000 each and the five individuals $1,000 each.

The government brought a mandamus action against Judge Stone in the circuit court of appeals here, contending he improperly dismissed the charges against the 11 defendants after the conviction verdict.

This petition is returnable Oct. 24, when Judge Stone will be asked to explain why the 11 defendants' convictions should not be retried.

Segar, Creator of 'Popeye the Sailor,' Dies in California

Santa Monica, Calif.—(AP)—E. C. Segar, 44, the house painter who became a cartoonist by taking a $20 mail order course, left in death today a million-dollar legacy of comic characters to amuse the world.

The creator of "Thimble Theater," a quaint comic strip printed daily by more than 500 newspapers, and "Popeye the Sailor," a movie cartoon with fans around the globe, died at his home here last night after a long illness.

Since last January, his condition had been so serious that he did little actual drawing. Others carried on the whimsical adventures of Popeye, spinach eater de luxe, J. Wellington Wimpy, hamburger chef and the Oyl family—Olive, Castor and Anna.

Segar was a native of Camptown, Ill., where he got his artistic start helping his father paint houses. When a St. Louis newspaper rejected his first cartoon, he took a correspondence school course. R. F. Outcault, drawer of Buster Brown and Tige, got him a job on the Chicago Herald turning out a Charlie Chaplin comic strip. But it was years before he struck a gold mine with the "Thimble Theater."

Popeye, the be-chinned sailor with a punch in either fist, was born in 1929 after Segar had moved to California.

Carpenters' Union Strikes at Laona; 600 Out of Work

Dispute Caused by Company's Refusal to Meet Demands

Laona, Wis.—(AP)—Six hundred men were thrown out of work today when a strike of the A. F. of L. Carpenters' and Joiners' union forced a suspension of operations at the Connor Lumber and Land company plant.

W. D. Connor, Jr., plant manager, said the union had walked out when the company could not meet its demands for a wage increase and a renewal of a closed shop contract, which expired Oct. 1.

Connor said the A. F. of L. union had erected a picket line around the plant, which was the scene of hand-to-hand fighting and several outbreaks of violence last spring when a CIO union picketed the plant in protest of a closed shop contract signed with the A. F. of L.

The closed shop contract, which the A. F. of L. seeks to have renewed, was the subject of a six-week national labor relations board hearing which ended here July 29. The N.L.R.B., which Connor said criticized the closed shop contract with the A. F. of L., has not yet handed down a decision.

The issue involved in the hearing was whether the company had interfered with and dominated the organization of its employees, William R. Considine, N.L.R.B. attorney at Milwaukee, stated.

Connor said the strike was called after negotiations last night ended in a stalemate. He said the company had proposed an open shop and a wage decrease to offset present business conditions.

Two Men Charged With Counterfeiting Coins

Milwaukee—(AP)—Two men were in custody at West Allis today pending issuance of federal warrants charging them with making counterfeit coins.

Captain Paul Hayner of West Allis police identified the two as Fred Schmidt, 40, and Alfred Roe, 35, both Milwaukee county relief clients. Both confessed making the coins, Captain Hayner asserted.

The men were arrested last yesterday, Hayner said, after a tip received from a youth Schmidt had attempted to enlist in the enterprise. Hayner said unpunished coins with a face value of $100, molds, clamps and metal had been found at a Milwaukee address and in an automobile.

Treasury agents, called in after the arrest, announced they would take the two before Commissioner Floyd E. Jenkins today. Hayner said Roe's record dated back to a burglary charge at Portage, Wis., in 1901, and included time in federal prisons for counterfeiting.

Broad Attack on Unemployment Problem Being Mapped Out for Approaching Session of Congress

Washington—(AP)—Informed persons in the administration disclosed today a broad new attack on the problem of unemployment is in the making.

This may result, they said, in presentation to congress early next year of a correlated program for restoring work opportunities by improving conditions in the nation's basic, durable goods industries. Details have not been made known.

At the same time it was learned a major objective of the monopoly investigating committee will be to uncover business practices and faults in the nation's economic structure.

The committee's work probably will be concerned with a long-range solution to the problem, but some administration officials are more interested in starting on a program during the winter.

Farley Endorses All Democratic Nominees For Badger Offices

Milwaukee—(AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley, one of the main goals in the New Deal, has sent letters of endorsement to all Democratic candidates for Wisconsin state offices.

This was revealed today as the candidates gathered here with William D. Carroll, chairman of the Democratic State Central committee, and other leaders to map plans for the Nov. 8 election campaign.

Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, wished all five candidates success. His well wishes were contained in personal letters to each.

Four of the candidates have been described as conservative Democrats. Two defeated New Deal candidates in the Sept. 20 primaries.

To State Senator Harry Bolens, Farley wrote that his nomination "no doubt is a great asset to the Democratic ticket." He added that he was confident Bolens and Senator F. Ryan Duffy, a New Dealer asking reelection, would make a creditable showing for the party.

Married Teacher Lacks Classes but Receives Salary

Brownsville, Pa.—(AP)—It cost the school district of this southwestern Pennsylvania mining town another day's salary today for its "teacher without a class."

Lacking anything better to do, Mrs. Herbert Edwards, Jr., a bride of a few months, sits alone in a tiny room in the schoolhouse and reads magazines. She has been doing that every school day since the term opened last Sept. 6.

Mrs. Edwards was married last summer when upon the school board, following a long established custom, asked her to resign.

Other married women teachers complied but not Mrs. Edwards, who contends that under provisions of the state's teacher tenure act she cannot be discharged for marriage.

The board then assigned a substitute teacher to her class in social science.

Mrs. Edwards said she would like to stay home, keep house and go to bridge parties but that she could not afford it.

Said Willard Griffin, president of the board:

"We'll pay her until the tenure law is amended so that we won't have to pay married teachers."

Sen. LaFollette Opens Progressive County Campaign

Starts Drive With Plea for United Political Action

Senator Robert M. LaFollette carried the Progressive campaign into Outagamie county yesterday with three speeches given at Seymour and Kaukauna in the afternoon and the Lawrence Memorial chapel in the evening.

Increased Progressive activity is seen in the county now that a vigorous campaign has been opened. Governor Philip LaFollette will appear at the Lawrence chapel on Thursday, Oct. 27, and State Treasurer Solomon Levitan on Friday, Oct. 27, the place to be announced later. Both are seeking reelection in November.

About 600 persons last night heard Senator LaFollette's plea for a straight Progressive vote. He struck at the reactionary activities in the two other major parties and pointed to the past record of Progressive accomplishments in Wisconsin.

Congressman George J. Schneider, candidate for reelection who was introduced by Samuel Sigman and in turn introduced Senator LaFollette, said the Progressives have dedicated themselves to world peace and to keep the country out of war, especially participation in any foreign war.

United Action

"United political action is needed to end the economic crisis separating idle capital from idle man power," Senator LaFollette said. "Sweeping changes have taken place in the last few decades in economic environment, from a state of scarcity of production to one of potential abundance of productive capacity. These sweeping changes have made complex problems and an interdependence of the world."

"We now are all in the same boat and must all pull the oars together or go down in chaos and war and eventual disintegration of civilization."

Turning to the two older parties, the senator said they took on their basic alignment on an issue of 1875, slavery. There is little wonder, he said, that they are torn with factional strife between reactionaries and liberals.

He spoke of the popularity of President Roosevelt and added that despite his popularity, ability to present complex problems and effectiveness as a political leader, he is unable to break the stranglehold of reactionaries.

Big Business

Big business, the speaker continued, seized control of the Republican party after the Civil war and has never relinquished its hold on it. There is talk about changing the face of the organization, but the reactionaries are waiting, LaFollette said, for the people to vote the Democrats out of power and then break again.

The Progressive party was formed, the senator stated, to force a political alignment to preserve democracy. In this way clear-cut issues may be faced with the reactionaries and the Progressives on one side and the Progressives on the other, he explained.

Factionalism which prevented democracy from carrying out the will of the people caused them to do down in defeat in Europe," LaFollette said.

Speaking of the Progressive organization in Wisconsin, the senator continued that it has given the finest and most efficient government that the state has ever had.

He mentioned the tax system, contending that its graduated system is the fairest. He also cited figures showing that more money has been returned by the state to Outagamie county under the current LaFollette administration than under the previous Democratic and Republican administrations.

Pension Problem

Senator LaFollette said the pension problem is one that should be handled through federal legislation but that the Progressives have done more for pensions than either the Democrats or Republicans. He said that Governor LaFollette passed the compulsory statewide pension law and that the date it was to go into effect was postponed by another administration.

Referring to criticism on the special session of the legislature, the senator declared that Governor LaFollette accomplished more in a few weeks than had been accomplished during the whole regular session because of delays caused by reactionaries.

"The governor speeded up action but he didn't prevent a roll call, amendments, proposals or speeches," LaFollette said. "He did, however, make it necessary for debate on any one bill to be continuous. It costs the state about $3,000 a day when the legislature is in session, so that many thousands of dollars were saved the people."

Accomplishments

"Among the things passed were the Wisconsin Agricultural Authority, reorganization bill state aid to high schools, child labor law, labor relations act and Wisconsin Development Authority."

Senator LaFollette asked that Herman L. Ekern, Progressive candidate for the senate, and Congressman Schneider be given bills so that they can help him get his war referendum bill passed.

He said the state is being "plastered with a lot of expensive billboard advertisements" and charged that a whispering campaign is being waged.

"These men, who are going about saying things that they can not publicly substantiate, are being paid $75 a week plus $10 for expenses," he said.

He concluded his talk with the statement that the Progressive party is opposed to a sales tax and a warning to business men of the consequences should an administration be put in that would put through such a measure.

About 75 persons attended a dinner in honor of LaFollette at the Hotel Appleton before his talk at the chapel.

Sales Mean Jobs

LaFollette Points To State's Program Of Cheap Farm Power

HARRON, Wis. — (AP) — Wisconsin would have been the only agricultural state without a share in the rural electrification program if the state's "tory Republicans and Democrats" had had their way in the 1935 legislature, Governor Philip LaFollette declared here last night in a campaign address.

LaFollette said he "salvaged" something for farmers that year by establishing the Wisconsin rural electrification coordination as an intermediary between farmers desiring electric service and the REA.

Up to Oct. 1, he asserted $7,500,000 in borrowed funds had been spent to build 6,331 miles of rural electric lines on 24 projects.

The Progressives' fight for cheap power, LaFollette contended, was successful in 1937 in passing the Wisconsin development authority bill. Major objectives of the measure, he said, were the promotion of rural electrification, encouragement of public ownership of utilities, and formulation of a state-wide power program.

Fish-Game Group Will Continue Feeding Program

Clintonville Protective Group Makes Plans For Winter

Clintonville — It was decided to again sponsor the winter bird-feeding program at the monthly meeting of officers of the Clintonville Fish and Game Protective association Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Weatherwax.

For the last two winters, members of the Clintonville club have placed grain and grit for the birds at various places in this vicinity at regular intervals. Feeders were constructed by the members for this purpose and it is planned to build more of them this year.

According to reports received by George Graff, president of the organization, the pheasants released by the club this year are doing well and will no doubt furnish targets for numerous hunters during the approaching season. Following the meeting of the club officers, they and their wives were entertained at cards and a late luncheon by Mr. and Mrs. Weatherwax.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Kennedy of Prairie du Chien were guests Tuesday and Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Miller on S. Main street. Friends were entertained at a 1 o'clock dinner given in their honor Tuesday noon by the Millers.

Mr. Kennedy, state deputy of the Knights of Columbus last year, was the speaker at the annual Columbus Landing Day banquet held here Tuesday evening.

A son was born Wednesday at the Shawano Municipal hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lutz, who reside at Clover Leaf lakes.

Herbert Dixon of Argonne is spending several weeks here with relatives. A former resident of Clintonville, Mr. Dixon now owns a summer resort in northern Wisconsin.

Mrs. Leo Polzin entertained her bridge club Wednesday evening at her home on Anne street. A dessert-luncheon was followed by two tables of contract with high scores at each table going to Mrs. Lloyd Scheider and Mrs. Ben Rathke.

North Division of the Congregational Dorcas society held its annual "guest day" Wednesday at the home of Mrs. William H. Shultz on Ninth street. A report on the state convention of Congregational churches recently held at Madison was given by Mrs. E. A. Miller, the local delegate. Games were played at which the prizes went to Mrs. J. R. Shannon and Mrs. B. G. Donley. The afternoon closed with the serving of a luncheon by the hostesses.

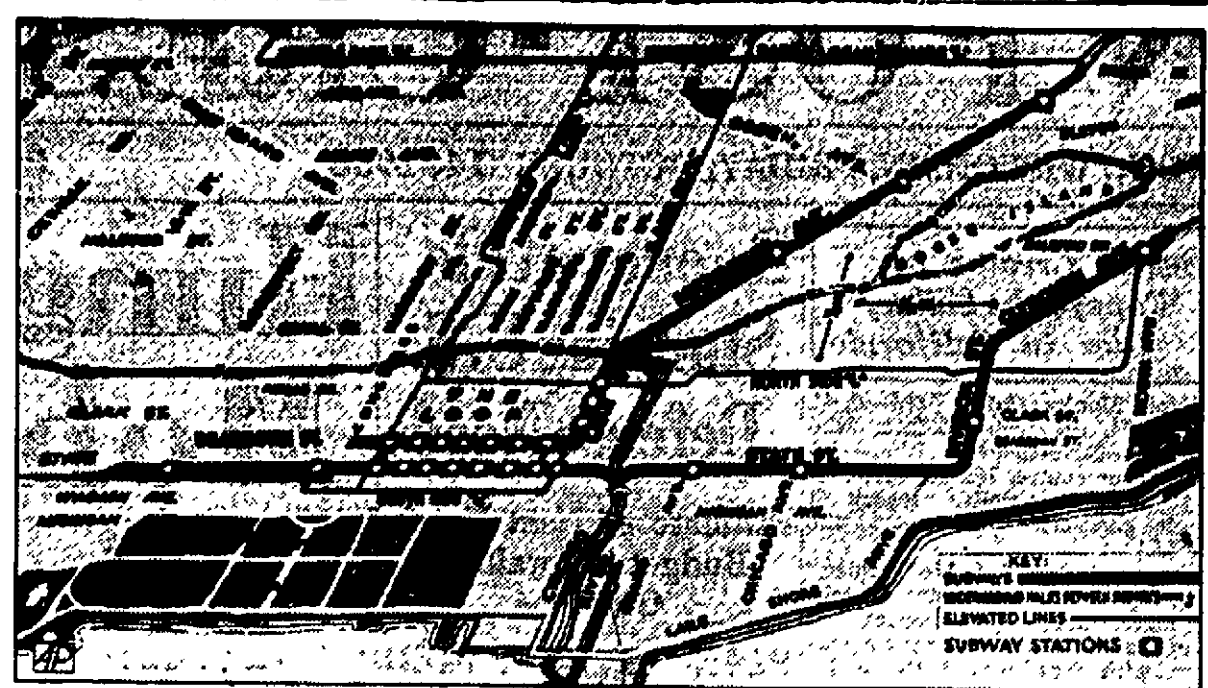

The Busy Twelve met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. August Timm on Bennett street. Charles Bennett, elderly resident of this city, is confined to his home by illness.

New Campaign Will Introduce Milk Products to Whole World

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — If a high-powered, well-financed advertising and promotion campaign and a will for self-help are important, Wisconsin's premier industry, dairying, will soon be on the road to prosperity again.

Before many more months Wisconsin's already extensive dairy advertising and promotion, made possible by generous appropriations of public funds, will be supplemented by an auxiliary campaign financed by the farmers' own money which will call to the attention of the whole civilized world the quality of Wisconsin butter, milk, cheese, ice-cream and other dairy staples.

Wisconsin has led in the organization of a new inter-state dairy advertising group to collect between 10 and 15 cents per cow a year in order to raise a $600,000 fund to keep butter from sinking to "axle grease prices."

Butter Surplus
It is the National Dairy Industries, Inc., which will enlist dairy farmers in Wisconsin and elsewhere in a joint "aggressive and continuous advertising sales program."

With an immense butter surplus resulting from an overflow of milk, dairy leaders have expressed concern in recent months.

Requests from Wisconsin officials and private interests to the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation have so far been fruitless.

The official state dairy advertising program, which has spent $75,000 a year for several years, is apparently too small to create a real national demand for Wisconsin's farm produce, according to state officials. To augment these efforts, the state legislature last year created the Wisconsin Agricultural authority, endowed it with a generous treasury, and directed it to find new and better markets for the farmers' produce.

Change Procedure In Securing Auto Licenses for '39

Certificate of Title Need Not be Sent to Madison

An improved method of operation designed to eliminate the necessity of forwarding certificate of title when applying for 1939 motor vehicle license plates has been inaugurated by the motor vehicle division of the department of state.

John E. Hantschel, Outagamie county clerk, has been informed. The procedure will result in a considerable saving in postage because certificate of title cannot be enclosed with license plates, but must be mailed first class.

Persons having automobiles licensed in 1938 still in their possession will receive a 1939 application card from the secretary of state. If the same car is to be licensed for next year, three questions on the application should be answered and the card returned with a money order or check.

The certificate of title must be sent in only if ownership of the vehicle is to be transferred, if correction of the certificate of title is necessary, if the person is so instructed by the department and if the applicant fails to return the application card sent by the department.

Captive Animals Given Finest of Care, Morse Says

Former Zoo Director Speaks at Appleton High School

Illustrating his lecture with dramatic stories of his adventures, George F. Morse, former director of the Boston and Chicago zoos, addressed the Appleton High school assembly yesterday. Morse, who talked on "Wild Animals in Captivity," was the third lyceum speaker of the year.

"The attitude toward captive animals has changed considerably in the last few years," Morse said. "Although they were once carelessly and inhumanely treated, captive beasts are now given the best attention possible."

There are two reasons for this change, he said, the scarcity of certain specimens—which means that those which are in captivity are valuable—and the more humane attitude toward animals.

Particularly thrilling were the speaker's accounts of his escapes from death in encounters with a half-lamed lioness, a leopard, and a boa constrictor. Stories about Jim, Morse's favorite lion at the Brooklyn zoo, were interspersed throughout his speech.

"The public is the greatest trial of the zoologist," Morse declared. "Thoughtless enough, visitors to a zoo often harm the animals by feeding or molesting them."

Animals in captivity are not to be pitied, he said. "There is no fear in captivity, while tragedy lurks everywhere in the jungle."

five British war vessels, were bottled up in waters near Canton. The Japanese consul here was understood to have warned all Japanese residents to be cautious regarding anti-Japanese feeling among Chinese residents of the colony. Japanese homes and businesses here were given special guards following a consular request for such protection.

More than 100 Japanese planes, in squadrons, bombed towns and villages in the pathway of the advancing troops. Coastal cities including Swatow, where 20 planes dropped scores of bombs in the business district and did considerable damage, were among the planes' objectives. Casualties were reported heavy.

More than 200 were reported killed or wounded when bombs struck a group of fishing boats on the Tsing river in Kungong.

'Blacks' Win First Place in Contest at Kimberly Mill

Kimberly — Announcements were made Thursday by Dud Courchane, safety director at the Kimberly mill, that the winners in the safety contest were the sulphite, woodroom and planning departments, known as the blacks. The contest started April 1 and ended Sept. 30.

During the six-month period the winners totaled 934 points. The blues, including the beaters, electric, steam and chlorine departments, ended in second place with 889 points.

The greens—calendar and finishing room—ended with 631 points, while the browns—laboratory, maintenance, structural and personnel—had 559 points; the reds and yellows ended in tie with 405 points. The departments in the red division were office, research and paper machines. The Yellows had materials, woodyard, warehouse, ground wood and general departments.

J. Whitney is foreman of the winning planning division while Tom Walton, Ed Werth and A. Fynerberg head the woodroom department. In the sulphite division, Theodore Lamers, Al Treiber and George Hankwitz are foremen. Don Porter is the superintendent in charge. The winning group is entitled to the banquet which was offered to the first place winners and which will be held at the clubhouse soon.

In the contest each month one of the groups sponsors a safety program at the clubhouse during the noon hour. The Yellows were awarded 50 points for having the best program which they showed on Aug. 31 when C. E. Jurgenson, employed at the Kimberly mill, presented a magician's act.

During the contest statements on safety to be answered "true" or "false" were issued by the personnel department for which the winner of each was awarded $5. The September award went to Al Adams.

Assessor Is Key To Honest Taxing, City Fathers Told

Tax Commission Chairman Says Office Should Be Made Appointive

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—If it's any consolation to the private citizen taxpayer, the men who are levying assessments against him in his home community are just as conscious of the tax problem as he is. At least so it seemed at the session of the mayors and aldermen at the annual convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities here yesterday afternoon.

City executives and city legislators, those who man the front line trenches in the American system of government, the men who are closest to the electorate and thus the truest representatives of the democratic method, got together here yesterday to trade ideas on how to make their jobs easier and their local governments more efficient. And they talked taxes.

From John Thiel, who came from a small town a few months ago to head the state tax commission, the top structure in the state's tax administrative system, they heard some crisp comments on how to make the taxation system more equitable and efficient. From Mayor Daniel Hoan of Milwaukee, often-times called the mayor of the best-governed city in America, and from many of their colleagues, they heard others.

Need Good Assessor
According to Thiel the secret of an efficient and just local tax system lies in the competency and character of the assessor. The local assessor must do a good job, he warned, or all of the other units of government will be off key. To get a good assessment, he suggested, cities should hire a good man to do it, and pay him a good price. That means, he said, that the appointive method must eventually replace the present elective process for the selection of the city assessors.

Thiel intimated that the local assessment system in Wisconsin now isn't that it should be. In one small city, he reported, a reassessment by the state tax commission raised the total 67 per cent. "Much personal property in the state has never been on the tax rolls, and there is evidence of favoritism by the assessor in too many instances," he said.

Abolish Favoritism
Abolition of such favoritism, and an assessment based strictly on true value of property, will ultimately be to the best interests of all the taxpayers, he observed.

The state tax chief reiterated the importance of the assessor, now in differently paid and haphazardly chosen, in the governmental system. "He must have courage and backbone. He must be fearless in the performance of his duty. He must have tact. He must at all times be good humored. He must have a firm conviction that political affiliation, personal influences, or other extraneous circumstances will have no relation to the values he establishes. Yet so often the men who must do this highly technical work are chosen by the elective method for reasons only remotely related to the type of work that he will be called upon to perform," he said.

Harold Magolski, secretary, and Mary Jane Oberstadt, treasurer. A Birthday club has been organized and those who entertained last month are Mary Jane Oberstadt, Ronald Moser and Gene Rogers. Oral book reports were given at the Literary club meeting by Bernice Prentice, Joyce Burrows, Marion House and Jack Vanbiervillet.

The fifth and sixth grades have completed a sandtable project on the poem, "September." The intermediate grades have made posters, a movie reel and have written stories in connection with their reading unit, "The Outdoor World." Booklets on corn and "The Great Stone Face" have been completed by the eighth grade. The fourth grade has made booklets on the poem, "The Boy's Song."

Pupils perfect in attendance last month were Bobby Magolski, Wayne Dobberstein, Viona Oberstadt, Marion House, Jack Vanbiervillet, Mary Jane Oberstadt and Bernice Prentice. Mrs. Evelyn A. Crain is the teacher.

The Kaws beat Clintonville last week, 20 to 13, overcoming a score of 13 to 7 in favor of the Trucks. The week before they were held to a 6-6 tie by Neenah. # Senator Praises State Tax System

LaFollette Talks to Overflowing Crowd in Council Chambers

Kaukauna—United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette came to Kaukauna yesterday afternoon and spoke to some 150 persons who overflowed the council rooms in the municipal building. After being introduced by Anton Miller, former state senator and assemblyman again appearing to the latter office, LaFollette devoted his time to what he described as "always an important issue—taxation."

He spoke of Wisconsin's graduated income and inheritance taxes as the result of persistent efforts of the Progressive party for a more equitable system than the one which placed most of the burden on the property owner. Since 1931, the speaker stated, no property tax has been levied for the general running expenses of the state.

LaFollette prophesied a general sales tax if what he called the "reactionaries" came into power. This "income tax upside down" would shift the burden of providing money to run the state from such sources as large incomes and inheritance taxes to the general consumer, least able to bear it, he concluded.

ENGLAND, ANARCHY AND THE JEWS

Is England about to abandon Palestine? That is the momentous question that makes world Jewry tremble for the consequences and should make the world, irrespective of Jewry, apprehensive likewise.

Most of the facts are undisputed. They tell a story such as may be read in any open book.

At the close of the World War Turkey was in possession of that piece of territory now known as Palestine. It was considered worthless. Many American writers who have traveled it from one end to the other have classed it with the Sahara and Death Valley. Where it wasn't a waste it was a swamp. But the Jews weren't choosers. They had to take what was left. And they took it with the determination to make it bloom like a garden.

Under the Balfour Declaration an arrangement was made along the most sensible and scientific lines possible to people this land with Jews but only as it could be made productive and such economic possibilities created as would support the incoming population. Great Britain deliberately accepted a mandate or protectorship over the territory. Afterwards, due to Arab objections and protests the territory was reduced until it now is in size about that of the smallest state in our union, little Rhode Island.

Into this country have moved about 400,000 Jews during the last twenty years. They have created cities, described as the most modern to be found. They have brought engineers, physicians, scientists. They have wiped out plagues, drained marshes, turned water into unproductive soil until their accomplishment stands as one of the wonders of the modern world.

But ignorance and fanaticism that have culminated in racial and religious intolerance, certainly augmented if not inspired, by Hitler's Berlin and Mussolini's Rome, have created attacks on a widespread frontier until Britain has intimated the possibility of its abandonment of Palestine which is the consignment of it to anarchy.

We have various kinds of Christianity in this world from highly emotional or ideal to barely practical. But if the Christian religion is not great enough to live up to part of its teachings and to rise to the occasion and rescue an attacked and beleaguered people from the infamous action of concentrated outlaws it will have failed in one of the greatest opportunities it has had in centuries.

It is cruel and remorseless to shrug shoulders over the condition of the seven million Jews scattered throughout Europe. It is bitter heartlessness to deny them any refuge, even the protection of the little Rhode Island they have rescued from the salt marshes and barren stretches along the Mediterranean.

There is no glory to one in pompously riding by upon a street lined by beggars. There can be no satisfaction in a world purposely operated to prevent millions of helpless people from even reaping the natural results of their own toil in a land claimed by them from the wilderness of the ages, abandoned by everyone else, spurned on all hands until they made it bloom.

It does not seem possible that Britain could be so forgetful of its obligations under its written engagements as to desert when only it can save.

For centuries these who have hated, reviled or taunted the Jews have declared they should have a land by themselves and live by themselves as other nations do. For at least 40 years leading Jews have planned to accept this advice, content to take a spot as unhabitable as was Palestine when they took it 20 years ago. Shall their matchless toil and energy be denied now? And if so what of hope? With hope dead all that is left them is to die.

Must the rest of the human race turn bully and badge them from pillar to post, scorning, humiliating, attacking and accusing them of every crime under the sun when in fact their greatest virtue through the ages has been their abhorrence of the murder known as war?

Humanity cannot permit such an extreme outrage to continue. Christianity, whose noblest works have been among those stricken and forsaken by others must give heed.

ILLINOIS POLITICAL SAFETY

Down in Illinois, where life and industry are superlatively safe, and politics as pure as the budding rose, an era of some sort has moved in upon the people but of precisely what nature the reader must judge for himself.

In the first senatorial district of the great state to the south of us Michael P. Shehan was nominated on the Democratic ticket for state senator in the recent primaries. He received three times as many votes as were cast in the Republican primary in which Daniel A. Serretella emerged with victory.

And yet Mr. Shehan has quit cold, withdrawn, left the race entirely to his opponent.

In the 17th senatorial district of Illinois, also within the confines of Chicago, one Michael Iarussi was nominated as the Democratic candidate. He received 5605 votes. In this district the Republican party doesn't amount to very much since it only polled 257 votes at the primary which brought the nomination to one James Leonardo. But now Mr. Iarussi, despite his 5,605 votes to the 257 for his opponent, has quit, withdrawn, handed the election to the opposition upon a chaste silver platter.

It is only occasionally that examples of this sort force their way to the public attention. The fact that the public records indicate rather strongly that entire senatorial districts in Illinois are as kittens tied to the strings that lead into political dens, and that the populace votes as it is told, now in one primary and next time in another, and that the swag including all the gambling income and rackets, is divided on a perfect fifty-fifty basis, will be designated as the cause of this sweet political courtesy but we cannot blot out entirely the fact that these districts have each had a turbulent and bloody political history, and that only recently an assemblyman from one of them, one Prignano, was murdered and that election officials have been ruthlessly shot down.

People with curious turns of mind will wonder just how conditions of this sort, which they rather crudely term sell-outs, can render life any safer or protect industry any more certainly from the marauders of various hues who try to live off it without work.

But people mustn't be so curious.

A SECOND IS NOT ENOUGH

Three cheers for the automobile driver who refused to pass another when he could see an oncoming car two full miles ahead.

He was discovered by two Yale University men who took motion pictures from a moving car and reported their findings at a recent meeting of the American Psychological association in Columbus, Ohio.

The safety extremist lives in the west where there are few trees and approaching automobiles can be seen for miles.

However, the westerner was a decided exception. The Yale report showed that one-fifth of American drivers avoid risk of sudden death in head-on collision by less than one second. Driving on the open road on two lane highways they allow less than a second to clear an oncoming car.

These one-second passers are among the more serious highway menaces for they not only endanger themselves and the occupants of their automobiles, but they also risk the lives of persons in two cars other than their own.

Nothing so infuriates a careful automobile operator than to be "tailed" by a fidgety, careless driver who is darting over to the left every few seconds in search of a break in traffic.

If he is one of the twenty per cent mentioned in the Yale report and his judgment is faulty by a second, he is likely to precipitate a three-way collision between the car ahead of him, the oncoming car and his own.

Although the number of traffic fatalities has fallen in the last six months the rate is still far too high and the careless passer is one of the driving types responsible.

GOD'S LITTLE MESSENGER

(For Janice)

God's little messenger came down
Through aisles of golden light
To shed new joys upon the town
And bless our weary night.
In summer roses bent to her,
And blue October lent to her,
The russet leaves that meant to her
Such wonder and delight!

God's little messenger brought love
And healing for distress.
She bore a message from above
Of faith and happiness.
In spring the skies were blue for her;
The violets all grew for her.
When winter came we knew, for her
The harsh winds would blow less!

Across the high immortal hills
God's messenger returned
To where, on heaven's window sills,
The stars have ever burned.
Dear God, You have been kind to her!
Turn Your sweet heart and mind to her,
And in high heaven, bind to her
The joy that she has earned!

THE RUSTLERS RIDE AGAIN

Pump and jovial Will J. Miller, who took charge as Kansas state livestock commissioner this summer, finds himself squarely up against a problem which probably beset the first man who ever held a similar position in Kansas—cattle rustling.

Shades of old Caldwell, Horse Thief canyon, Dodge City's Boot Hill and Abilene's long decayed first stockyards, are the ridin', rootin', tootin', gun fightin', hell for leather days of the west back? Not in Kansas—not by a jugful. Will Miller's problem, although as old in its essentials as the livestock industry itself, is as new

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

San Juan, Puerto Rico.—To one who has never before travelled the tropics, its wonders are awesome.

I write this on a table in an unbelievably beautiful and peaceful place called the Garden-by-the-Sea at the Condado, a hotel in the Condado section of San Juan—the American section.

Puerto Rican servants in white uniforms stand a few feet away to fetch cooling drinks. They are extraordinary in that they leave you to yourself until you call them. (In New York they have a habit of hovering at your elbow and making you feel you must hurry.)

The sea, greenish-blue, pounds on the beach only a few yards away. All last night I slept to its mighty music. Today I write to it. Tonight in this same fairland Garden-by-the-Sea, I shall dance; or if I do not dare step the sensuous, violent rumba which they do so perfectly here, I shall sit quietly under a needle pine and watch the others—the men in their white tropical clothes, the women in summery gowns.

The Long Island University basketball team has been playing a series of games here against Puerto Rican teams. The Puerto Ricans have never been much for athletic sports, but the younger generation is showing a lively interest, especially in basketball and baseball.

They hate to lose. You notice that at the basketball games, which the Long Island team always wins. When the home team appears hopelessly beaten, the crowd gets up and departs angrily, booing. They have not yet learned that happy American characteristic of being a good loser.

Puerto Rico is the only place under the American flag where lottery is legal. Yesterday I watched the regular fortnightly drawing. There were hundreds of prizes ranging from the grand award of $15,000 to $20. The profit goes to the upkeep of tuberculosis hospitals. In twelve months it reaches $750,000.

Four times a year there is a grand drawing at which the top prize is $75,000. The lottery is decided in a large second floor hall strongly reminiscent of a city council chamber in an average American city. Spectators' benches are arranged in long rows of a three-sided square. Ranged along the fourth side between the great windows which open upon a narrow street are the lottery jurors—men at a long table who observe with dignity the drawing of the numbers.

In the center of the hollow square are two globes made of many brass rings ribbed closely enough together so that the pellets printed cannot fall through. The larger ball contains all the numbers that have been sold. The smaller ball holds the pellets on which the prizes are printed.

An electric pump operates the two globes, turning them over simultaneously for a complete revolution, then stopping automatically. As each revolution occurs, a small gate at the bottom of each globe is tripped open, permitting a pellet to drop from each—one the lottery number and the other the prize it draws.

The pellets drop into brass baskets from which they roll down a trough to two other baskets beside which stand two boys from the orphanage. One boy picks up the lottery number and reads it. The other boy picks up the prize pellet and reads that. They then thread the pellets (there is a hole in the center of each) onto parallel brass rods, thus preserving them for later examination should anyone challenge the drawing.

Newspaper reporters sit at a table taking down all numbers, and there is an official seated between the two standing boys to act as custodian of the pellets. All, of course, takes place before the eyes of the jurors.

The drawing is routine enough for the most part, the spectators sitting silently while outside the little street is packed with people watching the numbers as they are posted. Only when big prizes are drawn is there excitement. As I sat there the tall, dark-skinned lad at the lottery basket read: "Ninety-two," and the small boy opposite him read: "Fifteen thousand dollars!" That was the grand prize, the drawing halted. The pellets were placed in a bottle. They were passed among the jurors and examined. There could be no mistake. There was a murmur among the spectators and excited talking in Spanish in the street.

Then the electric pump chugged again, and the lottery went on.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Friday, Oct. 17, 1913

Councilman John Goodland was to propose to the council at its next meeting that the city put two clusters of electric lights in front of the city hall and the same number in front of No. 1 engine house.

"The Last Days of Pompeii" was to be shown in motion pictures at the Appleton theater sometime that month.

An Appleton grocer said that day that the price of apples would soar to $10 a barrel during the approaching winter. The apple crop was considered one of the poorest in years.

10 YEARS AGO

Friday, Oct. 12, 1928

Appleton was to have four new express trucks within the near future, according to William Kimball, local agent of the American Railway Express company, who returned Wednesday from Milwaukee where he inspected the trucks. The horses which had been in service here were to be disposed of on farms.

Miss Olive Gage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Gage, 420 W. Fifth street, had been elected secretary-treasurer of the senior class at St. Mary college, Prairie du Chien.

The Danke creamery property on S. Commercial street at Neenah had been purchased by leaders of the Boy's Brigade and was to be remodeled. The steady growth of the Brigade to a total of 150 members that year forced the leaders to secure more suitable quarters.

as a streamlined airplane in its modern exemplifications. Here is the way it works:

The cattle rustlers use a truck—often a refrigerator truck. It has high sides which usually are painted with some advertising sign to give the impression it is a moving van. Inside rides a company and a cowhand. Arriving at a pasture, the barbed wire is cut, the truck descends into some deep draw or gully where it cannot be seen from the road, horse and rider are released from the wagon, and steers are rounded up and brought in to be killed and butchered.

When enough beef has been obtained the truck is loaded, horse, man and meat inside, and drives out of the pasture and away. The sinister cunning of the scheme lies in the speed with which the stolen beef can be transported. Often meat is sold the following morning 200 miles from where it was illegally slaughtered.

That it is a problem may be seen from the reports to the livestock commissioner. Several hundred head of cattle are reported taken from a single large western Kansas ranch in the last few months, and the rustlers' activities are by no means confined to this one ranch.

The vigilance and lawlessness used to be the remedy for cattle rustlers in the old days, but modern conditions and laws forbid any such direct action now. The Kansas Livestock association is posting metal signs on fences of its members advertising a $250 reward for arrest of rustlers. A new brand law also is being agitated to make easier identification of carcasses—Kansas City Star.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington.—The reason military experts expect Hitler to become dissatisfied with his present situation is—oil.

Careful computation of Germany's domestic oil production places it at an outside limit of 2,000,000 tons annually. In a war, that amount, even if available all at one time, would last Germany six to eight weeks. Military sources quoted from abroad estimated Germany's war time consumption would be 12,000,000 tons as a minimum and possibly 20,000,000 tons. At present Germany can buy from the United States and Mexico. In event of war with England those sources would be cut off by blockade. Then what?

That question explains why every German move is interpreted by military observers as directed toward gaining access to the Rumanian oil fields, one of the world's best. That field could not be cut off from Germany by the British navy.

Could Make It, But—It is one of the sorrows of Central Europe that despite its wealth in iron, coal and food, it has almost no natural oil resources. There is little in Sudetenland, taken from Czechoslovakia. Germany has employed its most skilled scientists to make fuel oil from coal but has been only moderately successful. The fuel can be supplied but it would take an army behind the lines to make fuel for an army in the field. The consumption of coal in making the oil would rob other industries almost equally important in war time.

Just how long Germany could continue to fight on without an adequate supply of fuel oil is problematical. In the World War she got along very well for four years with her major supply sources cut off. Since then, motorization of armies has proceeded rapidly. Germany's principal striking weapon, the air force, would be grounded without oil. And one of the disappointments of synthetic oil is that it is not satisfactory for airplanes.

A Reserve Horsepower Consumption of oil in other motorized wings of the army is much greater even than in the air. Germany has the fast striking power of her motorized armies. Yet its military chiefs have recognized the crippling possibilities of a shortage of oil by retaining a considerable body of horse cavalry and horse artillery.

Nothing much ever is said about this particular wing of the service. It is known among military men to be Germany's ace in the hole against a time when fuel no longer would be available. The fighting and hauling would have to be done with horses which could be fed from the countryside.

Access to the Rumanian fields would solve Germany's oil problem. Rumania ranks fourth among the great oil producing countries. It now produces 10,500,000 tons annually and could be expanded. It would be a long haul from Rumania to the western front or to a Russian front but the Danube provides a water route and railroads another.

The battle for the Rumanian oil fields might transfer the major war front far to the East. In that event, England and France would be hard pressed to defend them from capture—unless Russia should step in as an ally. And Russia seems to be cooling off toward France since the Czechoslovak affair.

THE LEANING TOWER OF PEACE-A

Your Birthday

"LIBRA"

If October 15 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m., from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m., from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m., and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

Surmising can get you into a lot of trouble this day. You must not guess at anything important. Actual knowledge will prove in more than one way to be the power back of all worthwhile achievements. Nearly every miscalculation in figures, distances, and food requirements probably will be due to interruptions and distractions, so concentrate on whatever you are doing. People, as a whole, are likely to react favorably to good suggestions tactfully made. Through the keenness of perception little in the line of deception is likely to succeed. This is a good day to seek a quiet place and spend a little time in meditation. Thoughts are apt to come to you that will be helpful in many ways. Married and engaged couples, and those who are planning a matrimonial future together, must refrain from getting excited over trifles this day.

If a woman and October 15 is your birthday, with little effort you ought to be able to develop a very retentive memory. However, let your recollections be only of pleasant incidents and try to dismiss unhappy ones from your thoughts. Your attitude towards the world in general may be influenced by your reflections and association of ideas, particularly those regarding friends and their actions. Women born on this date ought to do exceedingly well in work of an educational, literary, dramatic or musical nature. Marriage is likely to be the best medium for you to find lasting happiness.

The child born on October 15, has generally an easy-going disposition, until aroused, and then the chances are, the latest amount of energy that has been stored up is likely to be amazing when released. This youngster usually has a great deal of intellectual depth, which may be largely responsible for its success.

If a man and October 15 is your natal day, concentrate your efforts on doing one thing well. Refrain from having too many irons in the fire at the same time if you wish your hopes for making money and a name to be realized. Law, medicine, journalism, authorship, acting, selling, manufacturing or musical work are among the activities that might lead to success. ## Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

UNIVERSAL STIMULANT

If the patient is able or willing to swallow, a cup of clear coffee is the safest and most effective stimulant one can give in an emergency. A cup of coffee contains approximately two grains of caffeine, a fair medicinal dose.

Caffeine stimulates the cerebrum, the nervous system, the heart and the kidneys. The active principle in tea, called theine, has virtually the same effects, only cup for cup tea is milder or weaker than coffee. Likewise the active principle in cocoa or chocolate (called theobromine), but theobromine stimulates the kidneys more than the cerebrum and nervous system. For these reasons coffee, tea, cocoa or chocolate are not advisable for children under sixteen years of age, as a rule; if any must be given a child, it should be either cocoa or chocolate, and the more milk or cream used in preparing the beverage the better for the health of the child.

Caffeine has little after-effect, that is, if used moderately it stimulates, brightens, cheers, relieves fatigue, but does not let you down afterward.

One should keep always in mind that a stimulant is only an emergency agent. No such remedy effects any lasting gain or improvement. It merely causes expenditure of part of the reserve energy or vitality to tide over a lapse or a loss. It is the part of wisdom or common sense to consider carefully the drain or strain on one's capital reserve before resorting to any stimulant.

The effect of tea is practically the same as the effect of coffee. The active principle in tea is called theine. Grain for grain, theine is perhaps less stimulating than caffeine. Most people find that coffee late in the day or after dinner tends to keep one awake; whereas tea does not.

Neither tea nor coffee should be taken by children under sixteen years of age, nor even cocoa or chocolate unless it is chiefly milk and cream. Caffeine is too stimulating to nervous system, heart and kidneys for the physical welfare of children. Cocoa or chocolate contains a similar alkaloid, called theobromine, which is perhaps midway between caffeine and theine in effects, but has practically the same action.

I suppose it is necessary to give instructions for making coffee. It is quite simple. Put the ground coffee in the pot, vessel, crock, urn, vase or whatever gadget you use, pour cold water over it, let it stand a while (even over night) then turn on the heat. Watch the pot and snatch it from the fire just before it boils. It is ready to serve.

The idea is to keep the aroma in the coffee—it tastes fine. If you can smell it all over the place before breakfast it is not only justifiable but imperative in the interest of public welfare and peace among the nations that you go right down and throw out the cook and the coffee pot after her. Boiling coffee is a felony.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ulcerated Teeth

Thanks to your article, I had three ulcerated teeth pulled a week ago, and no after effects. I had suffered for a month, afraid to have them pulled. (Mrs. A.H.K.)

Answer — A competent dentist does not hesitate to extract an "ulcerated" tooth if it is damaged beyond saving. Only the poorly trained old timer imagines it is better or safer to "wait till the swelling goes down." That policy was responsible for much serious trouble in bygone days.

You Can Breathe Easy Now Our physical ed. instructor rides us constantly about the way we should breathe—we must hold our chest up and abdomen in or receive demerits (Miss L. F.)

Answer — Does the teacher wear hoop skirts? She should, in character. Send twenty cents, coin and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "How to Breathe." Or maybe I had better send the physical ed teacher one with my compliments—what?

Morphine Friend, sick, has received about 150 hypodermics of morphine in three months. These relieve for an hour or two only. Now he has stopped them. How long will it take to get all the morphine out of his system? (J. B.)

Answer — Not over 48 hours after the last dose. But that does not mean that the craving for the drug can be overcome or complete health restored—the rebuilding of vite and stability will take several weeks or months.

Wild Duck Dinner

Now that the hunting season is here I think it is appropriate to submit a wild duck dinner menu. Perhaps your husband or some other member of your family goes hunting, and if they are lucky, they undoubtedly come home with wild ducks.

To earn whole hearted masculine approval, you have to know how to cook them properly. I hope the following recipes and menu will help you. A duck dinner is not complete without wild rice, and to make this really an enjoyable meal what dessert could be more adequate than pumpkin pie.

- Wild Duck Dinner

Mashed Potatoes
Head Lettuce Thousand Island Dressing
Hot Rolls
Coffee
- Pumpkin Pie
- Wild Duck
Onion

Brown uncovered in a hot oven 450 degrees F. for 15 minutes, then cover and reduce to 325 degrees F. for 2 1/2 to 3 hours depending on the size of the ducks. Baste occasionally.

Wild Rice

Old Gardener Says:

Roses planted this autumn will need good protection when cold weather comes. No garden raker should expect his roses to survive the winter if they are simply plucked into the ground and allowed to live or die. Most of them will die. Just what method to use for protection is a matter about which growers are far from being in agreement. In a garden which is not exposed to high winds and which has some shelter from houses or trees, most garden roses will go through the winter in a cone shape to the depth of a foot. This work should be done just about the time freezing weather comes on. The earth, however, should not be taken from the beds between the plants. The proper plan is to draw in good soil from some other place. Small beds may receive additional protection by filling the space between the rows with leaves, peat moss or the boughs of evergreen trees. Sometimes boards are set up around the beds to confine the insulating material.

Jeanette MacDonald wears an Adrian-designed wool broadcloth suit in a combination of French blue and red for the Technicolor production, "Sweethearts." A military note is predominant in the fitted jacket with four inset pockets, small turned-up collar, red felt revers, with matching leather cord shoulder and sleeve detail. Miss MacDonald's purse and hat are of matching blue felt with red leather detail. A white silk scarf is caught with a silver key.

Woman Who Prefers Child To Husband Loses in End

One of the curious choices that most women have to make is between their husbands and their children. Few women ever realize this, but with the advent of the first baby there are conflicting calls made by their husband and their children upon their time, their attentions, their interests and their affections, and they have to decide to which ones they will give the most, and whether they will be most mother or most wife.

DOROTHY DIX

Nor does a man expect to, and he gets the surprise of his life when he finds out that after the arrival of Junior his wife has literally no time for him; that his taste and pleasures, comforts and convenience are of no consequence to her whatever as compared with those of the little godling in the cradle.

This is the more of a shock because until up to the minute of the baby's birth the man has been the center of their little universe. For him the wife has adorned herself; for him she has been bright and gay; for him she has got up delicious little meals. His pleasure has been her pleasure and she has always been ready to step out with him, or go off chumming with him.

But now, no more. She doesn't doll herself up because baby pulls at her children. Everybody must go on tiptoe around the house for fear of making the baby. She interrupts husband's best story to demand if he didn't think he heard baby stirring. She can't go out of an evening because she has to stay and watch the baby sleep. In a word, husband is a dethroned monarch ousted by a squirming little creature that looks like a cross between a cream cheese and a boiled lobster.

There are plenty of women who never see their husbands as men again after their first babies are born. Thereafter their husbands are merely the children's fathers, whose sole function in the world is to provide luxuries for the youngsters. There are plenty of women who cheerfully work their husbands to death to get motorcars and fine clothes for their children, and to send them to expensive colleges. There are plenty of women who give to their children all the understanding and tenderness and love that they have in their hearts and never even think of showing their husbands any affection.

The mother's alibi is that the children are little, helpless and need all of their care and attention, while the husbands are big, strong and capable of taking care of themselves. Which is as may be. Sometimes the husband is capable of taking care of himself, but generally he needs his wife to hold him by the hand and guide him along the safe path more than his 3-year-old does. Moreover, you can hire a good, reliable, middle-aged woman to take care of your babies, but you can't hire any safe woman to take care of your husband.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

There is only one way to reduce your hip measurement—that is by persistently exercising, walking and dieting sanely. And this late autumn weather is ideal for the job.

I have a leaflet for you which gives you rolling, rubbing and rocking exercises to take the offending inches from your hips. Choose the two or three which seem to be for your specific bulges, and be loyal to them daily. Get down on the floor and work away! The pounds gathered only because you were not active enough to use up the energy created by the amount of food the same excuse. Get down on your food, do mat exercises every day and get out and walk.

If you can, walk as many as five miles a day. Walk steadily for forty-five minutes in easy walking shoes, without a girdle and in loose, comfortable clothing. That is if you can. Otherwise, if you are busily engaged during the day, gradually develop the habit of walking to and from business, on small errands, and just for pleasure. As I told you before, walking has become a fad in New York city. You make it a fad. Get thinking you want to walk, not ride. But be sensible and wear appropriate shoes. High spike heels on hard pavements will injure your spine and if you insist upon wearing them, don't walk far. But do exercise more on the floor at home.

Walk Off Excess Pounds

One famous physical culture coach once told me: "No exercise is beneficial to you unless you work up a good sweat!" And that is true. You walk to discharge body poisons and to work up a good circulation so excess food will not settle on your hips and elsewhere in excess pounds! So you see, freedom of movement without a girdle, and a couple of warm sweaters, and a skirt which permits a good stride comprise the best walking outfit. Get into them on a week-end and take yourself for a good hike over mountains or down lanes!

And when you return home do not eat everything that is in the ice box! Drink a tall glass of fruit juice or chew on a raw carrot, apple or a stalk of celery.

Also watch your diet. Cut down on fats and starches, no eating between meals, and refuse party snacks and alcohol—if you want to keep slim. Concentrating on the hip line will soon make health habits seem very natural to you.

Send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope for my leaflet on reducing hip exercises. (Copyright, 1938)

All Children Entitled To Free Periods Daily

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Come, Don, I need you to go to the corner store, I forgot to get eggs this morning and I have to have some right away."

"I'm busy, Can't somebody else go?"

"You've got to go, you're busy. What do you think I am?"

"Well, I know, but every time I sit down to work at my map I'm called to do something. I bet I didn't get fifteen minutes a day to do what I want to do. Somebody always wants something. I'm going to have office hours, and anybody that wants me to do anything will have to ask before I go to the office. That's what dad does, and that's what I'm going to do."

Children, large and small, need a free period each day. When you remember that from the time they rise, at somebody's call, until they go to bed, by somebody's mandate, they have to work under the will and according to the pleasure of some older person. And that older person is not always considerate of the younger one's feelings.

It is a strain to live as other people dictate for hours on end, and for days and weeks. There must be time for a free feeling, a time for stretching the body and the mind in freedom. That does not mean that the child is to do what he likes if his likes are not good, but it does mean that he has to have a free time daily. He can be trained to use time for pleasant purposes. He usually can be relied upon to do so.

All that this requires is a bit of organization in the household. A schedule flexible enough to be usable, should be set so that all the family know what is expected of them, and when. The errands ought to be done at the specified time, and if anything has been forgotten it ought not to be gotten at the expense of the child's free time.

Some children have so many lessons that they never learn the real ones—self-expression, self-direction, self-help, self-discipline. Too much teaching, too much guidance, may be as bad as too little. A completely directed boy fell into the hands of two young rascals who ordered him to hand them his house key, which he had in his pocket, saying he had their key. Then they ordered him to lead the way into his house and made him stand by while they took what they wanted.

Watching the performance was a self-directed youngster who slipped away to find a policeman, escorted him to the place and rescued the lad with the long string of lessons, high marks, set duties. Leave room for the play of the child's self in the organized day. Give him a free period daily by organizing the household's routine. Self-direction is the aim of all education.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Do you think that "will power" can be developed or increased by practice? Do you think that it can be taught to children in the public school? Be sure to read this interesting case today.

CASE L-141: Truman B., aged 41, is an insurance executive. "My question is a technical one," he began our discussion. "I'd like to know the meaning of will power."

"Can we train children to have will power, or is it instilled in us at birth and not capable of being changed? What do you say Dr. Crane?"

DIAGNOSIS: When a chronic drunkard signs the pledge and goes on the wagon, but then turns into the next tavern he reaches, we say he has no will power.

When a fat wife starts dieting, but helps herself liberally to candy, butter, ice cream, etc., we say she has no will power.

Will power is not inborn: It develops after birth. Like conscience, it refers to a certain group of habits which are built into our nervous system.

Our personality consists of a hierarchy of various levels of habits. These are of different degrees of complexity.

How Will Power Develops

A man may have learned the habit of kissing a girl. But he has also learned the habit of avoiding such behavior with another man's wife. Now he meets an especially enticing young woman who happens to be married.

Shall he kiss her, as his first habit would urge, or shall he follow the habit reared upon by sight of the wedding band on her third finger?

This is a situation to which the term "will power" may properly apply. Indeed, will power really includes conscience. If the conflict is between a simple habit and a "church" or "law" type of habit, we say it lies in the field of conscience.

But if it falls within the field of gutting the senses versus following a scientific principle, then we seldom refer to conscience but to "will power." The fat wife who broke her diet is described as lacking will power but not necessarily violating conscience.

Habits Form A Hierarchy

We have habits with reference to tangible objects in our environment. But we also have habits with reference to other habits and intangible ideas.

If we teach our children to analyze a problem thoroughly before they act, then we can guarantee that they'll have will power. The fat wife need only to the immediate temptation of candy or ice cream.

If she had weighed that pleasure against the deterred but greater pleasure of having a slender figure, wearing a size 18 dress, holding her husband's love thereby so he wouldn't fall in love with his stenographer, etc., she would have shown more will power.

Teach children to diagnose their problems fully before they jump to conclusions. Courses in logic and participation in grammar or high school debating serve as excellent training in will power, for they make it a habit to marshal all the pros and cons.

Will power has magic in it. It simply refers to the fact that five pounds in one scale pan pose of the child's free time. An emergency will arise and can be taken care of as an emergency, but when the thing happens daily it is no emergency matter—just carelessness, a disregard of others' rights and feelings.

Some children never know what a free hour is. They are made to fill every minute with some adult's notion of what is good for them to do. This has its limits. The child who is never allowed to feel himself at work under his own power will never acquire enough to be a good citizen.

And he must go alone if he is to get any place alone.

Some children have so many lessons that they never learn the real ones—self-expression, self-direction, self-help, self-discipline. Too much teaching, too much guidance, may be as bad as too little. A completely directed boy fell into the hands of two young rascals who ordered him to hand them his house key, which he had in his pocket, saying he had their key. Then they ordered him to lead the way into his house and made him stand by while they took what they wanted.

Watching the performance was a self-directed youngster who slipped away to find a policeman, escorted him to the place and rescued the lad with the long string of lessons, high marks, set duties. Leave room for the play of the child's self in the organized day. Give him a free period daily by organizing the household's routine. Self-direction is the aim of all education.

Good Taste Today
By Emily Post

"GIRLS" OR "LADIES?"

Dear Mrs. Post: The president of the woman's club to which I belong insists on addressing the members of the club as "girls." Won't you be good enough to say frankly what you think of calling women over thirty "girls?"

Answer: Not only is it quite wrong because of their age, but equally wrong because the word "girl" is never used in addressing an indoor audience. Even in addressing a class in school, a speaker or teacher addresses the young pupils as children, and the girls in the lower grades of high school as "young ladies" and in the upper grades as "ladies" but never "girls." An outdoor circle of campfire girls or girl scouts would be addressed by a counselor or a fellow member as "girls."

When I Meet Him at the Train

Dear Mrs. Post: Don't you think it is quite all right for me to kiss my fiancé when I meet him at the train when he arrives for a visit (because of adverse circumstances, these visits are few and far between.) Our engagement has been publicly announced, and not to kiss him would seem to me to be a rather cool greeting. Mother and I are having many arguments about this question, which I hope your answer will finally settle.

Answer: Have you really no sense of romance? If there is one thing that a man and girl in love with each other want to keep to themselves alone, it is a demonstration of their affection, and you certainly don't want to make a gesture that is very precious and important to you (or should be) a public show for the gaping curious, do you? Or even if you don't believe in sentiment—kissing in public is really not in good taste.

Give His Seat to a Woman?

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary for a young man—or any man in fact, to rise and give his seat in a street car to any woman who happens to be standing near him? I know there aren't many men who relinquish their places but I would like a straight forward answer as to what you think about this waning chivalry.

Answer: This "waning chivalry" is one of the payments exacted for woman's equality with men. Having herself torn down the walls of the garden that used to protect her from the world of work and man, and having gone to work herself, it does not seem quite reasonable now that he (who's quite likely lost his job to her) should be expected to make believe that she is still a princess in a garden; instead of in a subway work-hour rush! In the purely social world, and in all purely social and personal contacts, man is still expected to be chivalrous. But in the world of work, a woman is above him only when her job and her work are superior to his work. Not that the skirt has the prettiest "swing," achieved ever so easily by slimming panels, both back and front. Add a contrasting girdle for extra style interest—in a new shape that is especially smart and flattering!

Pattern 4958 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 24 yards 54 inch fabric.

The tailored dress "comes into its own" with this dashing Anne Adams style. Pattern 4958 has new feminine "softness" with gathers from the chic little yokes and the youthfully long waistline. Why not run up one frock with the crisp high-tying neckline, and another with a stand-up collar that's equally becoming? The making's simple in both short- and long-sleeved versions, with a helpful Sewing Instructor pointing out just what to do! # Overcall Indicates Strength

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Do you ever get tired of hearing a partner say, after your side has stopped short of an easy game, "Why, I didn't know we could make a game, partner. You only overcalled?"

This strange philosophy (that overcalls don't mean much) is probably a throwback to auction days, when it was the practice of average players to overcall every time the spirit moved them, and almost regardless of their holding.

The fact is, of course, that overcalls mean a great deal! Not vulnerable, a player shows about four winners when he overcalls at the one level, and five winners at the two level. Vulnerable, he must have one trick more. Thus, as will be seen, an overcall, particularly when it is made at the two level, vulnerable, guarantees more winners than are promised by a player who opens the bidding with a suit bid of one.

Let us analyze the following hand: West, dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

AKQ10863	AKQ10863	AKQ10863	AKQ10863

West dealt and passed. North passed also, and East mentioned one club. South overcalled with a spade, and West gave a questionable single raise in clubs. North entered the arena with a bid of two hearts. This was a decided understatement of North's strength. His hand had almost warranted an opening heart bid. Indeed, despite the lack of the orthodox two and one-half honor tricks, a heart opening could not be severely criticized. Under that circumstance, and the further fact that his partner had shown a hand with five winners, North should have taken more determined action on this very round, not leaving it to chance that his partner might make another bid. Game should have appeared a near certainty to North either in hearts, spades or, possibly, diamonds, and he should have conveyed that fact to South by bidding, not two, but three hearts.

Over North's actual bid of two hearts, and East's pass, South was in a very difficult situation. Surely, he could not rely on his partner's card spade suit. He could not raise a mere two heart bid when holding a singleton. He could not go to 3 no trump with a single club stopper and such unbalanced distribution. So, in the final analysis, his choice narrowed down to a pass and a bid of three diamonds. Either course would have its merits and its disadvantages. I do not think that South's conservative decision to pass can be severely criticized. As will be seen, however, a laydown game in hearts was missed. Perhaps some players, holding South's hand, would have bid three diamonds and thus opened the way to a heart rebid by North, which then would have reassured South into raising with the singleton ace. But the point is that North's failure to make the proper bid over two clubs created a problem where none really existed.

I again call readers' attention to the fact that the second annual National Self-Rating Bridge Examination starts this coming Monday. Full details, including the form of examination will take, and the method of rating one's self, will be found in Monday's column. I heartily invite all bridge players to take advantage of this interesting examination which, of course, will be given completely without charge to the readers of this newspaper.

Cooler Weather On Way but Sky To Remain Clear

Temperature Stands at 75 Degrees in City At Noon

The weatherman looked over his instruments today, shook his head wistfully, and, somewhat apologetically, forecast "much cooler temperatures" for tonight and tomorrow.

"It can't last forever," he said.

He was speaking of the spell of warm weather that has hung over the midwest this week, with temperatures going as high as the middle 80's. The warm spell was still in Appleton today, the mercury standing at 74 degrees at noon.

The departure of high temperatures will not mean the arrival of nasty weather, however, according to weather bureau reports. Skies will be fair in Appleton and vicinity tonight and tomorrow—and in the state in general.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd of Chicago said today that frost would visit the Dakotas, Minnesota, and northwestern Wisconsin tonight. He predicted a sharp drop in temperature for southern Wisconsin.

For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 70 and the lowest 52, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

The mercury hit the low 80's as far north as North Dakota yesterday, according to the Associated Press, Phoenix, Ariz., with 86, and Yellowstone, with 39, were the hottest and coldest places in the nation yesterday.

guarantee the frontiers of the republic until she had settled her minority disputes with both Poland and Hungary.

Provisions of Accord

The Munich accord provided that the heads of the German, British, Italian and French governments would meet again in three months—by the end of December—if such settlements had not been achieved.

Before today's talk in the Fuehrerhaus nazi circles predicted Hitler would tell the Czechoslovakia envoy:

1. The Prague government must quickly agree to Hungary the Czechoslovak districts where Hungarians predominate.
2. Germany will not favor the Hungarian-Polish idea of a common frontier to be created by the incorporation of Ruthenia with Hungary.
3. Germany will approve a new Czechoslovakia comprising Czechs, Slovaks and Ruthenians as autonomous sections of a republic having only an army and a foreign policy in common.
4. Czechoslovakia must abandon her present alliances with soviet Russia and France.
5. Germany lays little stress upon Czechoslovakia's future importance as a military factor, and hence is indifferent whether Czechoslovakia joins a military pact with Germany.

It Is Said--

That a young man, who is young enough to think he's in fair physical condition, valiantly decided to leave the car at home and walk to work this morning. The distance is about a mile.

Founding down Superior street in the sweet morning air, with the sun just beginning to warm the world, he was telling himself how healthy this was and how he should do it more often. Besides, he could maintain quite a brisk canter, he thought.

About five blocks from the downtown district, he looked across the street and saw a young lady, dressed tastefully and wearing the usual high heels, on her way to work. She was about even with him when he first noticed her.

A block later, he glanced across the street again. The young lady, clicking along with short, rapid steps, had visibly gained on him. She was swinging her purse and humming a song.

"Maybe she ran a few steps when I wasn't looking," the young man told himself. "Cheater."

He summoned a few bolts of energy for his, tiring legs and heightened his pace, looking grimly straight ahead. Another block spun by. The young man looked across the street, confidently.

She was still ahead, still humming her little song. His breath was beginning to gallop and his stomach felt funny. He felt that way for 15 minutes after he got to work, wondering if the young lady were half way to Menasha.

State Approves New Rail Route

Change in Appleton Junction - Eland Line Permitted

The public service commission approved today the North Western railway's new route between Eland and Appleton Junction, via Shawano, Clintonville, Marion, Hortonville, and New London, according to the Associated Press. The former route ran between Eland and Green Bay, Pulaski, Bonduel and Bowler.

Fred A. Semmelhack, North Western agent, said today that two passenger trains are running on the new route. One goes west at 7:40 in the evening and returns through the junction at 7:10 in the morning. The other goes west at 8 o'clock in the morning, returning at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The commission said today a supplementary mail route established to improve mail service to Bonduel and Bowler in Shawano county makes the new route possible.

In July the North Western re-routed two passenger trains serving the territory between Green Bay and Marshfield through Shawano and Wausau. Protest was made by Bonduel and Bowler because of disruption of mail service and by Pulaski because of impairment of passenger service.

Miss Maye Holmberg, kindergarten director, and Mrs. Arthur Zschaechnr, instructor, directed the tour.

Youth, 20, Fined $10 On Speeding Charge

Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning fined Kenneth Wheeler, 20, 1315 W. Summer street, $10 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in the county detention camp after Wheeler pleaded guilty of speeding. The youth was arrested by city police on Badger avenue yesterday afternoon.

Carl Ehlike, 1411 N. Appleton street, submitted to an operation Thursday morning at St. Elizabeth hospital.

Boatman, yesterday, made the first trip down the Fox river since the recent heavy rains. The boat was piloted by Joseph Schlitz and it stopped overnight at the Appleton Boat club.

That Postmaster Stephen Balliet has been getting plenty of walking this week.

The postmaster is in the midst of his annual inspection, which requires, among other things, that he accompany city mail carriers on their routes. Balliet figures he tramped about 10 miles on one 2-trip route the other day. He didn't, however, have to carry the sack.

Clintonville — Henry Knitt was reelected president of the Clintonville Pure Milk Products Cooperative at its annual meeting held Wednesday evening at the Dairyman's State bank. Arthur Roepke, vice president, and Bernice Bay, secretary-treasurer, also were re-elected to office. Only one change was made in the board of directors Christ Larson of Sylam Hilde. The remaining directors are John Ewer, Robert Neely and George Long. Tom O'Connor was reelected state director to represent the Clintonville organization. Speakers at the meeting were Melvin Larson, White-water, state president, and Ed Malchowski, Pulaski, a member of the state department of markets. Those who were chosen delegates to the state convention to be held at Chilton on Oct. 25 include: Tom O'Connor, Arthur Roepke, Bernice Bay, Christ Larson and Bernard Mares.

As the result of an agreement reached this week by the Four Wheel Drive Auto company and the water and light commission at the city council, the truck firm will purchase its electric current through the city electric department instead of directly from the power companies as has been done for the last 12 years. The change will benefit the city and will also save the truck company about $200 a month.

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary were entertained by the Clintonville Chapter of War Mothers Wednesday afternoon at the Parkview hotel. Contests and games provided amusement, after which a supper was served to about 35.

Mrs. Oscar Klemp was hostess to the Leisure Hour club Wednesday afternoon at her home on Anne street. Three tables of bridge were followed by luncheon. Honors at cards were to Mrs. Arthur Scheive, Mrs. Frank McIntyre and Mrs. Arno Deser.

ued, ignoring her interruption, "is in a serious predicament. We have exhausted every legal possibility of assuring its continuance. It is now up to you."

"Last resort," suggested Kathleen, pertly. But she was interested. For the first time in her twenty-two years she was being considered as something other than a social adjunct to the Gregory clan.

"Darling," her mother leaned forward, "you know father wouldn't ask for a sacrifice unless it were necessary."

"Sacrifice?" echoed Kathleen. "Dad, would you mind beginning at the beginning?"

Angus Gregory cleared his throat. "We'd have to begin in 1870 and we haven't time. You of course remember the feud which exists between our family and the MacDonalds?"

"I was weaned on it," sighed Kathleen. "Because my grandfather and a MacDonald left Scotland together to search for gold in the West, and because they both struck gold the same day, they ceased being lifelong friends and became lifelong enemies. They started mines within a few miles of each other and along with these mines, their progeny have inherited a feud which makes one family live in New York and the other in Los Angeles. By the way, Dad, what started the feud?"

"I . . . why I . . . well, does it matter?"

Kathleen gave a husky little laugh. "What's the fun of a feud if you don't know the cause?"

"In view of existing circumstances, showing cause is immaterial," observed Beatrice, icily.

"Auntie, you've been spending too much time in the courts," chided Kathleen. She looked squarely at her father. "Well, out with it. How do I remove the blot from the Gregory tartan and who put it there?"

The Stubbard Boy Gregory pulled a long blueprint from his desk and spread it before Kathleen. "See these two lines?" he asked. "They represent the respective shafts of The Golden Girl and The Stubbard Boy, the latter being the name of the MacDonald mine."

"What's the idea of their crossing each other?" inquired Kathleen.

"They don't as yet," sighed Gregory. "The dotted lines represent the future shafts. However, for some reason the reins of ore run in this—this impossible fashion. We are down to this level." He marked a point close to the cross-center of the unevenly spaced X.

"If you'll notice our shaft is several degrees above the other. This means we will have to be the aggressors. Unless they will sell or concede us right-of-way around their shaft, we will be forced to close down."

Kathleen studied the blueprint a moment. "But won't they be over on our territory before long? Can't you trade courtesies with them?"

"Courtesies?" snorted Gregory. "Bah, they never heard of the word. And they won't be over the line for years. Notice how easily their line goes down, how gradually? When they do begin their trespass it will be up to the courts to set a precedent as to whether we, they, or the man who made the gold, owns the terrain at that depth."

Kathleen was sincerely interested now. Heretofore The Golden Girl had meant nothing more than the name of a mine on the door of her father's suite.

"Can't you go to court or what?"

"We've been in court for the last four years. The Stubbard Boy refuses to negotiate." Unaware of this implication, Gregory continued.

"Our engineers foresaw this difficulty years ago and we prepared to meet it. However, we have no legal means of forcing our enemies into court. As a last resort we appealed to the MacDonalds personally. It was futile. We have reached an impasse."

Angus Gregory paused and Beatrice, who had restrained herself with an effort, leaned forward to release her charge.

"And this is where you come in, my dear. You are going West to force that right-of-way. Now what do you think of that?"

"That one of the two of us is crazy," Kathleen retorted. "How could I do what Dad and the courts combined couldn't do?"

Angus Gregory sighed. He cleared his throat, then in a despairing voice explained. "The last of the MacDonalds, quite a young man, is resident superintendent of the Stubbard Boy."

Kathleen paused a moment. "And what does that make me?"

"You see, darling," Mrs. Gregory had come around the table to bend over her daughter. "We know how men feel about you. You have such a . . . such an ameliorating effect upon them that . . . oh you know," she concluded vaguely.

Kathleen sprang to her feet. "What a fine clan you've turned out to be," she began, her voice low and tense. "You expect me, a Gregory, to wam a damned MacDonald into giving you what you can't win decently. You expect me to sacrifice my self-respect while you remain here all wrapped up in your insufferable pride. You know what Cleopatra got out of a deal like this. Thank you, I'm not having any!" She swung towards the door.

"Kathleen, Kathleen—" Douglas was hurrying after her. "Won't you read this letter?"

Kircher Herd Is High Producer of Fat During Month

Guernsey Herd Averages 38.2 Pounds in Wau- paca Group

Wauapaca—The grade Guernsey herd of Charles Kirchner, Larrabee, with an average production of 38.2 pounds of butterfat, led all other herds in average production during September in the North Wauapaca Herd Improvement association.

Many of the members report they are feeding their cows grain rations in preparation for good winter production. Walter Kirchner, tester, finds that by proper conditioning dairy cows previous to freshening, they will produce 55 to 125 more pounds of butterfat than those not given special attention to the feeding during the dry period.

During September three cows finished 35-day lactation records, each producing over 500 pounds of butterfat during the year. Owners and the records are: A. E. Smith, Wauapaca, 539.5 pounds; J. P. Jensen and Son, Scandinavia, 531.2 pounds; and C. V. Peterson, Scandinavia, 516.7 pounds. Each of these cows is a Holstein.

Owners and records of other high producing herds during the month are: Wolberg Bros., 305, Floyd Gotham 29.4, C. V. Peterson 25.4, J. T. O'Donnell 22, Gurholt Bros., 20.4, Mrs. A. R. Potts 20.2 and Hugh Johnson 20.

Owners of the 10 highest producing cows and records are: Charles Kirchner 58.8, George Eder 53, Wolberg Bros., 52.9, Charles Kirchner 49.9, Floyd Gotham 49.4 and 49.3, Charles Kirchner 48.9 and 47, Arthur Schuelke 46.8 and Floyd Gotham 45.1.

Good Barns Help Dairy Cows Keep High Milk Yields

Proper Stabling Aids Pro- duction Recovery After Cold Snaps

A cold snap in winter, as farmers well know, almost always causes a drop in production of dairy cows. When warm weather returns, the herd may make up practically all of this temporary loss and return to the previous level of production.

In analyzing herd records of the state dairymen, M. A. R. Kelly of the federal bureau of agricultural engineering was able to trace a rather definite relationship between good stabling and good management and the recovery of production after cold snaps, according to a bulletin received by R. C. Swanson.

In herds that qualify as producers of grade A milk, the stabling and management must be good. In such herds production did not drop seriously as the result of a 3-day cold snap and when the weather moderated half of the cows returned to or exceeded their records for the days just before the cold weather.

In the poorer barns in the study only a quarter of the cows came back to their former records, and in cases where the cows were poorly housed the shrinkage in milk yield was sharpest and there was not a satisfactory recovery. "Cows kept in poorly lighted and poorly ventilated barns," says Kelley, "did not respond so readily when once their yield was upset, as did the cows in better barns."

Exposition Will Show Development In Farm Sciences

Display Planned With State Council Get- Together

Wisconsin farmers will be provided an opportunity to see the latest in farming science at the modern farming and marketing exposition to be held in connection with the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture's annual get-together conference in Milwaukee Oct. 27, 28 and 29.

Both the get-together and exposition will be held in the Milwaukee auditorium. The exposition, according to a program announcement from council offices this week, will be participated in by manufacturers and distributors of farm machinery, equipment and supplies. The council's own membership will have booths displaying effective marketing methods.

Besides the prominent speakers, among them Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee, who will welcome the visiting farmers, the 3-day get-together conference program in-

Issues Warning on Swine Erysipelas

Keep Outbreaks Isolated, Department of Agri- culture Asks

With new cases of hog cholera and swine erysipelas being reported daily from all sections of the state, the department of agriculture and markets in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, county agent, is urging farmers to use every precaution to keep present isolated outbreaks from reaching epidemic proportions.

It is advisable to immunize all purchased hogs against hog cholera and keep them isolated and under close observation for about two weeks, according to Dr. V. S. Larson, acting state director of livestock sanitation. In the event the hogs develop symptoms of illness a veterinarian should be summoned at once.

Anyone buying feeder hogs should be on the watch for infected or exposed hogs, especially if the hogs have been purchased at stockyards or other concentration places, Dr. Larson advised.

Ordinarily it is impossible to differentiate between hog cholera and swine erysipelas except through laboratory tests, he said. A service of this kind is given by the department of agriculture and markets in cooperation with local practicing veterinarians.

Committeemen to Attend AAA Meet

District Session Will be Held at Shawano Oct. 19

A. D. Sedman, director of information for the Agricultural Adjustment administration, will attend the district AAA meeting to be held at the American Legion hall, Shawano, Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 19. Outagamie county will be represented at the meeting.

Sedman will explain important provisions of the present farm act and will discuss economic conditions affecting Wisconsin agriculture.

Clark will discuss the relationship of better farming practices to the agricultural conservation program in Wisconsin. Wells will talk about administration of the agricultural program, and Schult will discuss correlation of educational work by clubs sessions for farm women, entertainment and music. Organized labor and industry will have a place on the speakers' program as well as representatives of Wisconsin agriculture. The annual banquet will be held Thursday evening and it will be followed by old-time dancing and a program of entertainment.

county agricultural conservation associations. More than 750 newly elected community and county committeemen and county agents are expected to attend the meeting.

Be A Safe Driver

First Party of Series Planned at Bear Creek

Bear Creek—The first of a series of card parties will be given by the women of St. Mary's parish at the Forester rooms, Monday evening. Bridge, schafkopf and fifty will be played. The Women Foresters met at the Forester rooms Tuesday evening. After a business meeting the time was spent playing bridge. Mrs. Gertrude Long received high score.

Mrs. Thomas O'Connor and Mrs. P. C. Batters were on the entertainment committee. If metal tops come off shoe strings dip them in mucilage. This will stiffen the ends and make it easy to put them through eyelets.

L. Cotton was high for the Oil Burner quint with a 540 series and 165 game. M. Horn topped the losers with a 445 total.

Automotive Supply won two games from Adam Goos with E. Lucassen pounding a 504 series and L. Klebenow bagging a 201 game. H. Glasnap pinned two games of 199 each for her big series and was high for the Adam Goos squad.

Remain in Tie

ArCADE stayed in a second place tie with a 2-game triumph over Metropolitan Cafe. L. Lueders cracked a 203 game and 510 series for the winners while F. Gehring felled the plums for a 207 game and 508 series to lead the losers.

Two games were credited to Polka Dots over Oaks Candies. Johnson blasted a 203 game and 512 series for the winners while V. Lundstrom had 454 for the losing five.

Schaefer Dairy collected two games from Kolosso Garage as I. Radtke slammed her high 233 game and 534 series. B. Stevens rolled a 501 for the losing quintet.

Coch Breaks Leg as
Protege Tackles Him

Cellfax, Wash. (7)—There's nothing so effective as a good example in teaching football, opined Coach Walter Henry.

He lined up his high school gridsters to show them how to evade tacklers.

The first boy to charge the coach brought him down—with a broken leg.

Chaffin Chatter
By Gordon H. McIntyre

HERE WE'VE BEEN COMPLAINING about how tough the picking of grid winners has been but as the season goes on the picking gets tougher and we've run out of alibis, complaints and what have you. Too, the boys are getting so that they ask us who we pick to win and then go out and put their money on the other fellow. So what to do? (Long pause while we load up the pipe and go into a dream.)

A-ha! We have 'em, all of 'em. But we can't foresee a lucky pass half the length of the field, a fumbled punt in the last quarter or a last second interception of a pass for a touchdown and an upset. So, barring all those things and on the face of matters, on paper and according to the dope, this is what will happen:

Lawrence-Monmouth—Bernie Heseltin is a bit afraid of this one. Monmouth scored twice on Coe and was down there a third time. Lawrence scored once. The Scots will be big but we hope slow. We'll pick Lawrence and then cover over face when the boys try for points after touchdown.

Sheboygan-Green Bay West—The Wildcats beat Appleton; Appleton beat the Chairs. Which makes it a runaway for West.

Ripon-Beloit—The Gold is realizing on the talent it acquired the first year after the house cleaning at Beloit. It would seem Bud Butler has something down there. Beloit.

Green Bay East-Oshkosh—We're going to be among those present who watch East wallop the Indians as a warmup for Appleton.

Fond du Lac-Manitowish—Manitowish is happy again and it appears the Irish on the team, McDonnell and McConnell, give them reason to be. We're sticking with the Irish.

St. John-St. Mary—Seeing as we won't be in Little Chute for a couple days after this statement, we'll pick St. Mary by a close margin.

Kimberly-Manawa—Kimberly finally did right by us and so we'll put our nickles, both of them, on the Papermakers.

Menasha-West DePere—Menasha hasn't clicked for some reason or other to date. West has won two games. Can't help but pick West and then hope we're wrong.

Marion-Clintonville—Looks like the Truckers will avenge that big defeat last year or was it the year previous?

Neshanic-Shawano—Shawano apparently was playing possum in pre-season doping. It appears to be as powerful as ever. Therefore, Shawano.

New London-Kaukauna—Ouch. Based on accomplishments so far, this game is a tossup. If we pick one of the other coach will use us to goad his team on to upset our predictions. So, Messrs. Stacy and Little, we're picking a tie. Or the team with the best method of scoring after a touchdown will win. And we don't know which has the best method.

Carroll-Lake Forest—Wouldn't be surprised if Carroll's string of wins was finally broken.

Alabama-Tennessee—The game of games in the Southeastern conference this week. Tennessee, after bowling over Clemson, hurled Auburn but this is an Alabama horse of another color.

Wisconsin-Fitt-Harry Stahl-dreher must have been feeding his Wisconsin Badgers nothing but raw meat, but the conviction grows that this Pitt outfit has everything a great team needs. Pitt.

California-U. C. L. A.: That was a minor miracle U. C. L. A. engineered last week against Washington but California power would seem to be the decisive factor here California.

Texas A. and M.—Texas Christian: A Santa Clara team that ran up 22 points on Stanford could score only seven on the Aztecs. Nevertheless Christian has been knocking it around like so many ten-pins and gets the nod here.

Minnesota-Wichita—Other guys can analyze this one if they want to. This corner prefers to call out the coin and let it read... Minnesota.

Syracuse-Cornell—Two undefeated eastern powers collide, and if this ballot goes to Cornell it's because the Ithacans have faced more rugged opposition than the Orange.

Fordham-Purdue: The same sort of reasoning ought to make Purdue the selection in this one but this quesser strings along with a hunch.

Northwestern-Ohio State: The grapevine says Northwestern is one of the really strong teams in the Big Ten but this corner, more stubborn even than usual, takes Ohio State.

Duke-Georgia Tech: This series.

Herber to Toss
Forward Passes
For the Packers

Green Bay and Brooklyn
Teams Will Tangle in Milwaukee Sunday

GREEN BAY—Youngest team in the National Football league in point of professional service, the Brooklyn Dodgers have drawn the assignment to oppose Coach Curly Lambeau's Green Bay Packers at State Fair park, Milwaukee, at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Although the Packers currently are third in the Western division, their squad seems at least the equal of this Eastern team that is tied with Washington for first place. Arnold Herber will be back throwing those uncanny passes, bolstering the lineup that has greatly revived after last Sunday's defeat by the Lions.

Statistics show the 1938 Packers to have done the better in scoring. While aggregating 85 points to the Green Bay opponents' 58 in five games, Brooklyn has scored only nine more points than the 40 of the opposition in four appearances. The average this is 17 to 11.2 against 9.8 to 8.

Brooklyn defeated the Cardinals 13 to 0, while the Packers took the Chicago team in two games, 28 to 7 and 24 to 22. With this one exception, there is no direct means of comparison.

Coach Polys Clark, who is enjoying his second year at Brooklyn, is well known to the Packers fans. In fact, Wisconsin sports followers show not too much affection for the former Portsmouth-Detroit mentor, and each time he is beaten it is just that much more of a good thing.

Bruiser Kinnard, Mississippi All-American tackle, has a regular berth with the Dodgers, weighs 210 pounds and is one of the fastest linemen in football. About two of every three Dodgers are six feet tall or over, but the tallest, Jim Whalley at six feet 4 1/2 inches, does not approach the six feet six of Buford (Baby) Ray of Green Bay.

With Brooklyn, too, will be Bill Reising, a sensational placement kicker. He is claimed to be sure death at 40 yards and has been booting them over from midfield with satisfactory consistency in practice.

has developed some of football's most dramatic games. Out of the hat, Duke.

Columbia-Colgate: The Columbia, with their limited manpower, can't go on indefinitely, but they rate the call.

Dartmouth-Brown: This would appear to be the spot where the Brown Bear gets trapped. Dartmouth.

Harvard-Army: And still no hope for Harvard.

Princeton-Penn: Princeton looks too green to cope with Penn.

Yale-Navy: Looks like a third straight beating for Yale.

Nebraska-Indiana: Nebraska, the boys say, will be very good in November. This is October and we'll take Indiana.

Tulane-Rice: Tulane's coming strong; Rice hasn't even started. Maybe the Texans will this week. Rice, reserving right to appeal.

Marquette Ready
For Kansas State

Clash This Evening; Both
Squads Handicapped
By Injuries

MILWAUKEE—(7)—Two teams with 500 records for the lusty young football season will be shooting for a position on the black ink side of the ledger when Marquette plays host to Kansas State here tonight.

Neither team was expected to be at peak form because of injuries. Coach Wes Fry left three of his men at Manhattan for that reason. The Marquette squad was well punctuated with various ailments, but two crimpers, acting Capt. Harry Leyensner, quarterback, and Fireman Bill Burke, right end, both were listed as probable starters.

Fry's aces are Elmer (One Man Gang) Hackney and Bob Briggs, alternating fullbacks; Elmer Nieman, southpaw halfback, and Ken Nordstrom, center.

Coach Paddy Driscoll was ready to introduce Ray Apolskis, Chicago sophomore, as combination center and signal caller to home town fans. Marquette has won five and lost two of the series that began with Kansas State in 1925. The Kansans won at Manhattan last year, 13 to 0.

DETROIT—(7)—University of Detroit football followers claim that the defensive record of their teams ranks with the best in the nation. Since Charles E. (Gus) Dorais became head coach at Detroit in 1925 the Titans have won 83, lost 33 and tied 6. In only nine games has the enemy scored more than two touchdowns. Five of the nine games occurred in Dorais' first two seasons at Detroit.

Michigan Seeking
Revenge for Four Straight Defeats

Wolverines Invade Minnesota
Saturday for Crucial
Big Ten Tilt

BY WESLEY CARTY
CHICAGO—(7)—Fritz Crisler's Michigan Wolverines moved into Minnesota's bailiwick today possessed of what the hunch players probably would tab as a "sign."

The supporting argument, for those who lend credence to such things, begins with the fact Michigan has never been defeated five times in a row by any team. It continues with the whisper that Michigan State beat the Wolverines four successive times, but failed to do it this year.

The Gophers have whipped Michigan four successive times. Saturday Bernie Bierman's boys will be trying to make it five straight.

Last night, as the Wolverines rested in Chicago on route to Minneapolis, the shuffle of chance assigned to Fritz Crisler, in a loop hotel, room 1938.

Michigan Seeks Revenge

There are abundant reasons which make the twenty-eighth meeting of the two teams a natural. There's the little brown jug and ex-Minnesota Coach Crisler. But chiefly, it was the Gophers who kicked the Wolverines from their dominance of the Western conference.

It began with a scoreless tie in '35 and continued with the four successive Bierman victories.

In other Big Ten camps yesterday:

Wisconsin was cheered by the return to action of four injured players — ends Gordy Gile and Bob Weigandt, tackle Bob Eckl and halfback Tony Gradinski—all of whom probably will see action against Pitt.

Punting and passing held Indiana's attention before they left for their engagement at Lincoln with Nebraska.

Faces Fordham

Speed and frequent shifts in his backfield were planned by Mal E. Zupke to return his Purdue Boilermakers winners over the tough Fordham crew in New York.

Bob Zupke predicted defeat for Illinois by Notre Dame because of the injury suffered by his quarterback Mel Brewer.

Irl Tubbs sent Iowa through a pass defense drill before leaving for Chicago while Clark Shaughnessy sought a solution for his right tackle problem by using four Marion sophomores during a scrimmage.

Northwestern was pronounced "not yet ready" defensively after Ohio State by Lynn Waldorf as he continued defensive work; rain forced Ohio State indoors but Mike Kabealo got in some practice passes before the storm broke.

Kimberly Freshmen
Defeat Holy Namers

By Score of 27 to 2

KIMBERLY—In an exciting game of football Thursday afternoon between the Kimberly high freshmen and the Holy Name midgets, the high graders won by a score of 27 to 2.

Hundreds of pupils and faculties of both schools witnessed the contest. The score is no indication of the gameness and spirit of the midgets. They were outweighed about 15 pounds per "man."

Holy Name kicked to the Papermaker 35 where Stuyvenberg took the ball and ran for a touchdown. Shortly thereafter, Hietpas, stocky right half, fought his way over the goal line, dragging several of the Holy Namers with him.

In the second quarter Schnese, quarterback drove over for another touchdown, the half ending with the freshmen leading 20 to 0.

The Holy Name boys played the freshmen practically on an even basis, mixing their line plays with flashy passes to reel off several large gains. A fumble by the midgets, recovered by Hietpas, scored another touchdown for the Papermakers.

Late in the last period Holy Name scored on a safety. The game ended with the freshmen winning 27 to 2.

HOXIE LAMERS WINS AMATEUR BOUT

Hoxie Lamers, left above, won a shade decision over Bob Hannes, Oshkosh, in one of the bloodiest bouts on last night's amateur card at Armory G. Lamers suffered a cut on the face early in the bout and before the final bell rang he was splattered with red. The evening's program featured seven bouts. Two ended in knockouts and a third was a technical K.O. (Post-Crescent Photo)

At Robbins, 115, Oshkosh, pounded out a three round decision over Dean Schuler, 115, Kaukauna.

Chippy Lutz, 140, Appleton, won a three round decision from Phil Effenberg, 141, Oconto Falls.

Hoxie Lamers, 142, Little Chute, received a close decision over Bob Hannes, 145, Oshkosh, in three rounds.

BY RANDY HAASE

TWO knockouts, one technical kayo and four decisions, only one of which was close, marked the opening card of the amateur boxing season under the sponsorship of Ony Johnston post of the American Legion before a slim crowd at Armory G Thursday night. Both of the windup bouts, scheduled for five rounds each, ended in knockouts. Phil Zwick, the Kaukauna slat, was introduced from the ring.

Marshall Simonsen, Racine, a 3-times golden gloves champion, sent over three crashing right hands to kayo Jimmy Richardson, Fond du Lac, in 53 seconds of the first round of their bout. Simonsen hooked his right to Richardson's jaw after a few seconds of milling and the Fond du Lac boy dropped with a dazed look. He got up without a count and the right hand lashed out again, a short, sharp hook. Richardson went down again, taking an 8-count. He rose once more and the sharp-shooting Simonsen hooked his right once more to the same spot on Richardson's jaw and the Fond du Lac boy was counted out.

WINS IN THIRD ROUND

Jimmy Panagos, Milwaukee, went down seven times in three rounds under the fists of Carl Schumacher, Racine, before he was counted out. Schumacher, a rugged, hard-hitting boxer with a 5-pound weight advantage over his slim opponent, caught Panagos with a hard right to the mid-section in the first round that sent him to the floor for a 7-count.

Panagos was inexperienced in comparison with his opponent. He elected to throw a punch and then run, turning his back to Schumacher. He had no luck either at staying away from the Racine boxer or in tying him up in the infighting.

Panagos was on the retreat through the second round and went down three times without very much pushing. The first two times he took 8-counts while the bell stopped the third count. He went down two more times in the third round.

Marshall Simonsen, Racine, a 3-times golden gloves champion, sent over three crashing right hands to kayo Jimmy Richardson, Fond du Lac, in 53 seconds of the first round of their bout. Simonsen hooked his right to Richardson's jaw after a few seconds of milling and the Fond du Lac boy dropped with a dazed look. He got up without a count and the right hand lashed out again, a short, sharp hook. Richardson went down again, taking an 8-count. He rose once more and the sharp-shooting Simonsen hooked his right once more to the same spot on Richardson's jaw and the Fond du Lac boy was counted out.

THIS WEEK'S SCHEDULE

Monmouth at Lawrence.
Beloit at Ripon.
Coe at Cornell.
Knox at James Milliken.
Carleton at Bradley Tech.
A tied game is calculated one-half game won and one-half game lost.

LAWRENCE college football team, a bit slap-happy as result of two Midwest conference wins, will seek its third tomorrow afternoon at Whiting field when it clashes with Monmouth college, Monmouth, Ill. The kickoff will be at 2 o'clock.

The invaders are coached by Ivan Cahoon, who used to direct Green Bay West high school and West De Pere, and previous to that had a long career with the Green Bay Packers. Reports are that Cahoon has a big team which has been improving with every start. A delegation of his friends from Green Bay will be down for the game.

Lawrence hasn't worked as hard as usual this week because of the bruising it took in the Carleton game last Saturday. Two of the lads came out with broken noses, Buesing is out of the game with an injury and others are nursing bumps and bruises in numerous quantities.

Don Weidman has been selected to take over Buesing's job in the Vike backfield and that's really a task. Buesing was an excellent defensive man and clicked well with Novakofski and Kaemmer in the Viking offense.

Joe Maertzwiler again will call signals for the Vikings and do most of the important blocking and back up the line. Novakofski will show in the left half position with Kaemmer at fullback.

Galko at Guard

The ends will be Jack Crawford on the right and Jack Nystrom on the left. Vince Jones will take care of right tackle and Leroy Lubenow the left. There will be one change in the starting guards with Mike Galko at left guard instead of Hatten. Ralph Siebold will show in the right guard slot.

Reports from Monmouth are that t. Scots are big with a line that in several instances will be heavier than Lawrence and with a backfield that will be considerably heavier. The squad started slowly as Cahoon became acquainted with his proteges. He has made several shifts since and apparently is favored.

U. W. Is Confident Of Holding Pitt

Badgers Ooze Confidence in Their Final Workout
AL DORSCH READY
Veteran May be at Starting Tackle Post Tomorrow

MADISON—Every one "oozed" confidence in the Wisconsin football camp yesterday as the Badgers took their final hard workout before the headline intersectional clash against Pittsburg on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Camp Randall. Spirit hit a new high as the "Jame and the halt" ran again and indications are that the Cards may be at full strength for the national championships.

Gordy Gile, Shorewood sophomore end, and Bob Eckl, Milwaukee tackle, regular left end and left tackle, respectively, stand a 50-50 chance of playing. If Eckl is ready to play, he will start the game although Stuhldreher has not yet decided upon his starting ends. Dorsch May Start Tony Gradisnik, Milwaukee junior left halfback, and Bob Weigandt, senior right end, have also come along rapidly and indications are that they will be ready to go. All four were thought lost for the tilt because of leg injuries. The Badger starting lineup remains in doubt at three positions, both ends, and left tackle. In the dummy defensive and offensive drill staged against the freshmen, Ralph Moeller, Watertown, was at left end on the first team with Ed Wagner, Cudahy soph, at the right wing. The left tackle spot was manned by Al Dorsch; Wauwatosa, who reported two weeks late. Dorsch has learned the new formations and, although he tires easily, will start if Eckl's leg strain fails to show the same improvement.

Coach Stuhldreher will pin his end strength upon three sophomores and two lettermen. Shift Not Necessary

Gile, Al Lorenz, who has started all the games at right end, and Wagner are the rookies. Moeller and Weigandt are the vets. Stuhldreher drilled Wagner at both wing positions in order to bolster the reserve strength.

The remaining first string positions are manned by the same boys who opened against Marquette and Iowa. Lynn Hovland will be at left guard, Jack Murray at center, John O'Brien at right guard, and Gene Brodhaugen at tackle. Vince Gavre will be the quarterback flanked by Bill Schmitz and Roy Bellin, halves, and Howie Weiss, fullback. Stuhldreher at first contemplated shifting Bellin to left halfback in order to bolster that position should Schmitz be forced to leave the game. Tony Gradisnik's progress removed that necessity and Stuhldreher will rely upon his four left halfbacks, two of whom are injured.

In addition to Gradisnik, Veteran Jimmy Martin has been sporting a sprained ankle. He, too, has come around and will probably see action. The remaining right half is John Tennant, Fennimore soph, who dashed 23 yards to a touchdown against Marquette.

The Badger first team has complained to Stuhldreher because the boys feel they have not played enough—only a total of 37 minutes as a unit against Marquette and Iowa. But they'll have no worry on that score Saturday for full strength at all times will be needed. Stuhldreher realizes that substitutions will be necessary and last night spent much time grooming his third team.

Garrett In At Tackle

Pittsburgh invaded Wisconsin at an early hour today, and the natives are ceding the town of Janesville to the Panthers without any opposition. The Badgers have fallen back at Camp Randall and are trusting their all that Gen. Harry Stuhldreher and his Cardinal troops will be able to save that citadel from sack and pillage.

Depend On Defense

The general learned his military tactics from Knute Rockne and has been building a defense he hopes will make the Magnot line seem like so much tissue paper. General Jack Sutherland of the Sutherland-Highlanders is confident his Panthers will take Camp Randall by storm for the tall Scot will be satisfied with nothing save a national football title and without any play score.

The Panther cavalry has engaged in three easy skirmishes and Sutherland views Saturday's engagement as the most important of the fall campaign. With that in mind Gen. Sutherland has called up his air corps to assist the infantry and horse in the attack on Camp Randall.

Softball Promoter Sues Joe Louis for $8,650

Los Angeles—Marty Fielder, softball promoter, took a legal sock at boxing champion Joe Louis today in an $8,650 damage suit. Fielder asserted Louis repudiated a contract to have his softball team play here Oct. 20.

The promoter demanded $3,000 as profits he would have made, $5,000 for injury to his reputation, and $650 expenses.

Clintonville Baseball Team Is Honored at Civic Dinner by Association of Commerce

BY GORDON MCINTYRE

CLINTONVILLE—Aside from splitting a rather neat melon, the 1938 baseball season ended for the Clintonville Trunkers here last night when the Northern State league champions were feled and dined at a civic dinner at Hotel Marston. More than 125 persons jammed the hotel dining room.

Originally planned by the Rotary club, the program became an Association of Commerce sponsored project when it was decided to make it a civic affair. However, the Rotarians had their place in the spotlight when they presented each member of the club, from the baby to the team's president, with a zipper billfold.

The evening opened with singing led by Max Steg who, after dinner, deserted the role for one as president of the Association of Commerce and took charge of the program. He read letters of regret, at not being able to attend, from Bernard Neuman, Two Rivers, president of the State league and from the loop's secretary, George W. Calhoun, Green Bay.

Mayor Talks

Mr. Steg also recounted the events leading to the arrangement of the program and then introduced Mayor A. Washburn who congratulated the ball team and the baseball association. The mayor expressed pride in Clintonville's accomplishment and mentioned the part the city administration had in bringing a lighted field to the city, a project which made Northern State league ball possible.

The mayor also introduced Charles Bennett, 77, whom he referred to as Clintonville's oldest baseball fan and one of the city's pioneers.

The evening's program then was turned over to Arthur Johnson, who was introduced as the Clintonville High school football and basketball coach, but who revealed himself as something of an entertainer with a list of jokes that might have gone on forever, and who literally had the crowd "laying in the aisles."

Talks by guests, members of the ball team and Clintonville people then became the order of events. The writer had a chance to apologize for having said some months back that he didn't feel Clintonville and Seymour, which two teams battled for the second round title and set attendance marks, would be able to make the grade in Northern State league ball; had a chance to congratulate the team and the management and to suggest Clintonville cooperation in its various other sport ventures, high school and otherwise.

Felts, Smith Talk

Sidney Felts, the Tilleda tenor, who also did considerable pitching for the Trunkers during the second round, was the next speaker. He thanked fans for their support and was followed by Richard "Red" Smith, Green Bay and Hopkingsville, Ky., not to forget Kaukauna, who expressed appreciation for having had an opportunity to play with the Trunkers. He also expressed the thought that baseball was an outlet for American emotions and for that reason the people of the United States never would turn to communism and overthrowing of governments. They take it out on players, umpires and sports writers, he said. Buford "Baby" Ray, giant tackle for Green Bay Packers, was introduced and was the only man who got away without being ribbed by the "roastmaster." (He looked too big to Mr. Johnson.)

Olen Presents Gifts

Walter Olen, president of the Clintonville Four Wheel Drive company.

E. D. Fruth Resigns as Fondy Basketball Coach

Fond du Lac—Resignation of E. D. Fruth as Fond du Lac High school basketball coach because of his duties as director of athletics in Fond du Lac public schools, has been announced. At the same time it was announced Mike Calvano, football coach, will handle the cagers this year. Calvano is taking the sport only for a year, the board of education reserving the right to make the post permanent or make a change next season.

Tooone's run proved the margin of victory.

In its long string Carroll has scored a total of 355 points to a combined total of 60 marked up by its opponents. The Pioneers have averaged 18.7 points per game to an average of 3.2 points for their opponents.

PERFECT YEAR FOR TOE

University, Ala.—(AP)—Hayward Sanford, substitute end for Alabama, last year scored ten points with his toe. He had a perfect record with two out of two field goals tried and four out of four points after touchdowns. Both his field goals last year won games for the Crimson Tide, enabling it to complete the regular season unbeaten and untied.

third round before a final hard right sent him down for the count. Harry Stephens, Kenosha, received credit for a technical kayo in the second round of his bout with Fay Gennett, Milwaukee, when Dauber Jaeger stopped the bout after Stephens opened a deep cut over Gennett's eye. Stephens, a southpaw boxer, did the leading in the first round but Gennett caught him with hard blows to the head when the Kenosha boxer came in close.

Stephens took the upper hand in the second round, landing hard lefts to both the midsection and the head when Jaeger stopped the fight.

Jerry Gutman, Fond du Lac, a familiar performer on Appleton amateur cards, gave an exhibition of clean, decisive punching and clever infighting to take the decision from Kenny Thorpe, Clintonville, in the opener. Thorpe was aggressive and carried the fight to Gutman in the first round but the Fond du Lac boy had an advantage in experience, pounding to the midsection when Thorpe tried to tie him up.

Thorpe tried badly in the second round and was groggy from solid punches. He was willing to hang on in the clinches. Gutman received a cut over his eye in the mixing and in the third round was content to coast, fighting only in flurries. Thorpe was too tired to press any advantage although he did keep charging forward. Gutman for the most part kept away and moved in close for brief exchanges in the third round.

Chippy Lutz, Appleton, continued his string of victories when he took a decision from Phil Effenberger. Lutz was too smart for the Oconto Falls boy, landing the more solid punches and piling up an advantage in the infighting. Effenberger opened the first round with a rush that had Lutz puzzled temporarily. Both stumbled and fell to the canvas.

Lutz Takes Lead

Lutz went into the lead in the second round when he landed some rights and lefts that slowed Effenberger. Effenberger was still aggressive although he was too tired to fight more than in flurries. There was action when he did get going. Both were tired in the third round, which was a repetition of the second. Lutz landed the most blows and tied his opponent up but Effenberger still kept charging in.

Al Robbins, Oshkosh, a rough, alley fighter with a windmill motion, took the decision from Dago Schuler, Kaukauna. Schuler landed some blows but never had a chance to press an advantage for Robbins merely swarmed in, throwing leather from all directions, every time he was hit. Schuler looked to his corner for advice in every clinch.

After a fairly even first round, Robbins pounced Schuler around the ring in the second and continued through the third round. Although Schuler landed some hard blows, defensively he left himself open, ducking and turning his back. Robbins threw too many punches for the Kaukauna fighter.

Boos and cheers greeted the decision awarding Hoxey Lamers, Little Chute, the nod over Bob Hannes, Oshkosh. The fight was rough although there wasn't much continuous action. Hannes opened a cut over Hoxey's eye in the first round but in the second fought only in short bursts. At times he acted as if fighting was the farthest thing from his mind. In spite of his cut eye, Lamers took the offensive and carried the fight to Hannes in the final two rounds to take the decision.

SEE BIG-LEAGUE FUTURE

Nashville, Tenn.—(AP)—Ted McGrew, Brooklyn baseball scout, thanks Joe Coscarart, Nashville Southern Association infielder, is headed for big-league stardom.

After trailing the Nashville club several days, McGrew said he thought Coscarart "is the greatest young second baseman I ever saw."

"He's ready for the majors right now and I look for him to develop into a real star, maybe the best second-baseman since Frankie Frisch."

Shawano Primed For Neenah High

Game Tomorrow Will be Highlight of Indian Homecoming

Shawano-Shawano High school Indians were pronounced ready for the invading Neenah Rockets as the squad tapered off yesterday, and judging from the Shawano fans, the team will take unexpected Neenah strength to spoil the homecoming celebration here tomorrow.

The Maroon and Black warriors, not a big lot this year, will depend on speed and deception, and with an aggressive line from end to end.

The homecoming celebration got under way today with a huge mass meeting at the high school, which included a presentation of the key to the city by Chamber of Commerce secretary Oscar Ramlow.

Festivities will open Saturday with a parade to the football field including both Neenah high and the Shawano high bands, and the Shawano student body. The game, central feature of the celebration, will get under way at 2 p. m. A homecoming dance will be held in the evening.

John Hay Whitney Tells What's Wrong in Racing

Lexington, Ky. —(AP)—What's the matter with racing? "Too much box office ballyhoo" says John Hay (Jock) Whitney.

Whitney, member of the New York Racing commission and president of the American Breeders' association, told the Thoroughbred Club of America last night.

"We hear too much talk of turnover, gate receipts, daily double and such box office ballyhoo, and the success of a track is too often judged by the size of its dividends."

The Thoroughbred club had just made Whitney's mother, Mrs. Payne Whitney, an honorary member in recognition of her contributions to the sport during the last quarter of the century.

400 Press Agents Each Want to Place One Man as All-American

NEW YORK.—(AP)—It is something alarming to learn there are more than 400 college football publicity men in this country, each of them determined to place at least one man on this season's All-American eleven.

For these figures, and the warning implied, we are indebted to Bob Madry, who has been singing song man for the University of North Carolina for 15 years. Bob is here with a trunk full of photographs of the Tar Heels, who play New York university tomorrow.

Bob's job, like that of the other 399-odd, calls for him to get around a great deal, establishing a new pitch each week and generally shedding miscellaneous information for the benefit of sports writers.

Also in town are Dexter Teed of Colgate and Bob Woodward of Purdue, either of whom can cite offhand the birthplace, nick-

ED DANOWSKI, New York Giants forward passer further entrenched himself in first place for aerial honors, with the most completions and most yards gained. He now has completed 36 out of 61 for 438 yards and 59 per cent efficiency. By continuing his present pace, Danowski would set a new National league record for completions, shading the 81 successful tosses made by Sammy Baugh last year. Bill Hartman, Washington, has a 60 per cent efficiency record, but has thrown only a little more than half as many passes as the Giants ace.

Gaynell Tinsley, Chicago Cardinals end, with 18 catches, retained his lead as a pass receiver in defense of the league title he won in this department last year. Hutson is closing the gap and now has caught only two less. Charlie Malone, Washington, went into a tie for third with Carter of Philadelphia with 13 catches.

Homecoming Events to Get Underway Tonight

Little Chute — Plans have been completed for the homecoming activities which will get underway at 7:30 tonight with a bonfire and pep meeting and will wind up with a dance Sunday night. The St. John-St. Mary battle Sunday afternoon will be the feature of the homecoming.

It was the first time a woman had been so honored.

Trucks Prepare For Marion Passes

Orange and Black Confident of Win at Marion Tomorrow

Clintonville — Saturday afternoon the Clintonville Orange and Black travels to Marion to meet the Purple in a non-conference encounter which will mark Marion's homecoming. Plans are for one of the largest crowds ever to witness a high school football game in this section. The Orange and Black, under the guiding hand of Coach Svede Johnson, is figuring on upsetting the Purple celebration.

Judging from the manner the Clints played in their last game against Kaukauna it should be an easy victory for the Orange and Black. Kaukauna had a scare thrown into it when Coach Johnson's proteges opened up with trick plays but came through with a 20 to 13 win. On one occasion Jack Martin ran 78 yards for a touchdown after he had gotten the ball from Jim Billmeyer on a clever reverse after the kickoff. On another occasion Ozie Goerlinger, captain of the squad, intercepted a pass deep in the Kaw territory and ran it to the 5-yard line where Billmeyer skirted off tackle on a reverse for a touchdown.

Marion, on the other hand, has been in a slump this year losing most of its stars of last year's squad through graduation. Nevertheless it has one victory to its credit. The Purple are expected to use the air to overcome the Clints inasmuch as they occasionally have been playing six-man football. Johnson has been drilling his squad on pass defense and it should be able to stop the Purple. Clintonville's biggest worry in Jumbo Eland who is playing his fourth year for Marion. Eland is a big, husky boy tipping in scale close to 200 pounds and can run, pass and kick. The Purple have shifted Eland from the line to the backfield this year and he seems to be holding down his position well.

Clintonville will start the same lineup as used against Kaukauna with Art Drumm and Lyle Roloff at ends, Red Klitz and Ed Schuelke at tackles, Russ Shannon and Bud Laux at guards, and Ronny Flinow at center. In the backfield Jack Marion should still be at fullback, Ozie Goerlinger will be at fullback, and Jim Billmeyer and Art Zeske at the halfback positions.

Ernie Lombardi Won Batting Crown With Sprained Wrists

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Some queer things are happening out there in that Minnesota powerhouse. . . . Bernie Bierman has a 218-pound fullback (Larry Buhler) playing right half and running the ends. . . . Wilbur Moore, born and bred a right-half, is playing left and tearing the tackles apart for amazing yardage. . . . Bierman has a converted fullback—George Faust—playing quarter, and, oh yes, just for a change, fullback Marty Christianson is playing fullback. . . . There is a hard-boiled hockey defense man (Mariucci) with a lot of body checking talent playing one end, and a basketball hotshot guard (Butch Nash) playing the other. . . . Guards play tackle and tackles play guard, and I am only sorry to report that centers Dan Elmer and John Kilbicki are not playing quarter. . . . But give Bierman a chance—they may be there before the season is over. . . .

The baseball gossipers have Burleigh Grimes catching on at Rochester and Jimmy Wilson at Buffalo. . . . Just to show you how Bill McKechnie feels about his second base problem, he has offered Linus Frey, Wally Berger and a promising kid catcher, Will Hershberger, to Boston for the aging Tony Cuccinello. . . . The Messrs. Bill Terry and Larry MacPhail didn't almost square off against each other during the World series, did they? All because Brooklyn drafted a pitcher (Russ Evans) Terry had bought for Jersey City? . . . Anyway, their feud is at the "berling permt," as they say in Brooklyn, and anything can happen. . . .

Most of you didn't know it, but Ernie Lombardi of the Reds won the National league batting championship with a pair of sprained and tightly taped wrists during the last three weeks of the season. . . . They were so swollen the club doctor told him to quit and go home. . . . Most players would have done it, but old Ernie stuck and won the title with a mark of .342. . . . So while you are putting out vivas for Joe DiMaggio, Franck Crosetti and other Italian heroes of the World series, save a few lusty ones for old Ernie, who won the batting crown the hard way. . . . There was no snap to his swing the last three weeks. . . . He just pushed his bat out in front of him and every time he connected it hurt like the very devil. . . . So Viva Lombardi! (Or whatever you hollow in Italian) . . .

Most baseball men think Ray Schalk already has signed to

Trick Pension Plans No Help For Citizens That Live Right

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER

New York.—Aside from the economic question, the newest California age retirement plan, the one called $30 every Thursday, is wrong for the same reason that the Townsend scheme was no good. Both are unfair because any dead beat, loafer and rummy of either sex, on reaching a certain birthday, would be instantly raised to equality with those who have always made a conscientious effort to lift their weight, keep off the town and carry their pints.

Both schemes also are cruelly unfair to orphans and half-orphan, who would stand to receive less benefit or none. Orphans have a hard enough time of it at best, and it seems impossible that the great, sentimental heart of America will ever tax a poor, lonely orphan to provide pensions for the parents of his more fortunate neighbor sufficient to permit that neighbor himself to retire to a life of assured ease. That neighbor is sufficiently blessed in having one or more of his dear old parents still with him.

In view of the divorce rate of the last 30 years some fairly youngish citizens of our land would have not only their regular parents to draw pensions but one or two step-parents as well. The family pickings in the way of pensions would come to $120 a week, or $480 a month, under the new plan, or $800 a month on the Townsend plan. Either way, that is not bad going, and certainly nobody is going to argue that mother love and father love or even stepmother and stepfather love has become so feeble in this glorious land that these pensioners would refuse to buy a loving child of 30 or 40 years an occasional new car. Anybody wishing to utter such a contemptible crack about the beautiful instinct of mother love and father love and stepmother love and stepfather love is an un-American cad sneering at one of the most beautiful institutions known to man.

A citizen with two parents on the pay line, his own dear mother and father, and his wife's own dear mother and father, even without any step-parents on either side, would still have $120 a week under the Thursday plan or $500 a week under the Townsend plan, on top of the pension for the support of himself and family if he and his loving helpmate each were an only child. But the people next door, if they were both complete orphans, the husband as well as the wife, would have nobody to draw any pensions.

Danger Of Contaminating Flower Of Filial Lane

My stand on that, in paraphrase of Eugene Field, is doggone a critter, anyway, as does an orphan of half-orphan dirt.

Aside from the obvious orphan and half-orphan oppression concealed in these proposals, there is also a danger of contaminating the beautiful flower of filial devotion with sordid motives or of placing loving sons and daughters in a false position. A loving son or daughter might have the purest motives that ever stirred an honest, loving heart in coddling the health and whims of his or her dear old parents. But the neighbors, particularly the orphans, would be sure to suspect base purposes.

In order to avoid such suspicion honest sons and daughters would be driven to dissemble their love, and there you have a danger of converting the American people into a nation of mother and father beaters. Is it worth it?

Just Living 50 Years

Hunter Stuns Duck; It Takes Off From Hunting Coat Pocket

Winnipeg.—(AP)—"A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" didn't run true to form for Albert Armistead and Walter Scofield. Armistead fired into a flight of ducks and brought one down. # Hunter Stuns Duck; It Takes Off From Hunting Coat Pocket

Winnipeg.—(AP)—"A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" didn't run true to form for Albert Armistead and Walter Scofield. Armistead fired into a flight of ducks and brought one down. Scofield placed the duck carefully in the pocket of his hunting coat. A short time later Scofield felt a rustling as the mallard, only stunned by Armistead's shot, took off from his pocket. The hunters were too exasperated to think of firing a second shot.

Four Rocket Regulars Will be Unable to Play Saturday

Neenah — A crippled Neenah high school football team will clash with the Shawano Indians in a Northeastern Wisconsin conference grid game Saturday afternoon at Shawano. The Rockets have four regulars on the inability list.

Dean Sword, who has worked at quarterback and halfback, has been sick all week, and although he will make the trip to Shawano, Coach George Christoph said that it is unlikely he will be able to get into the game. Dan McDermid, end, received a cracked rib in practice recently. The injury has failed to respond to treatment and the flankman has been forced to the bench.

Co-captain Robert Vanderwalker, right guard, is still out of the line-up with a broken collar bone, and Dan Schmidt, fullback, is on the bench with an injured leg. He sprained tendons in his left leg recently.

Calder Picks 26 Gridders for Tilt With West DePere

Bluejays Oppose Phantoms in Conference Game Today

Menasha—A squad of 26 Menasha high school football players, accompanied by Coach N. A. Calder and L. E. Lindquist, assistant coach, left this morning for West DePere where the Bluejays will play their third conference game of the season this afternoon. The game was scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

Although the Bluejays have the better record in conference play, the Bluejays will not be particular underdogs. They must be rated a good chance to defeat the West DePere team, particularly after the showing made in practice sessions this week in which the Bluejays blocked, ran and passed the best they have shown all season.

Coach Calder named the probable starters. At ends they were George Shaw and Ed Hill, at tackles they were John Levandowski and Henry Landskron, at guards Ray Honk and Gene Grode and at center Kenneth Wolff. H. Funk may get the starting position at guard over G. Grode.

The starting group in the backfield will include Roland O'Brien, quarterback; Kenneth DuCharme and Jack Grode, halfbacks, and Donald Druck, fullback. Richard Sheleski may start at the left half post in place of DuCharme.

Other members of the squad include Gordon Wasinger, W. Young and Martell, ends; Frank Thompson and W. Woodhead, tackles; N. Dahlman, Drexler and DeLong, guards; Eugene Resch and Michalkiewicz, centers; B. Schmitzer, quarterback; Finch, halfback and R. Nantke, fullback.

Neenah—Hunters in Winnebago county will invade the uplands starting Saturday noon when the pheasant season opens.

Conservation Warden Arthur Chase, Oshkosh, reported today that prospects for good hunting are better than in previous years. He pointed out that there are more pheasants in the county uplands this year than last year, county road and gun clubs having planted a large number of birds during the year and the pheasants having fared well during the year.

The warden also pointed out that the kill will not be so heavy on the opening day because the season doesn't open until noon. He explained that the birds are out in the morning looking for feed and have returned to the brush by noon.

NEENAH CHURCH IS 50 YEARS OLD

Trinity Lutheran church, above, is 50 years old this month and in honor of that anniversary the congregation will hold special services beginning with a preparation service Sunday morning. The Rev. E. C. Reim, right, pastor of the church, will be the director of the golden jubilee anniversary. He has been pastor the last three years.

The jubilee service with guest pastors presenting the sermons will be held Sunday, Oct. 23. (Church view is Post-Crescent Photo)

Several changes in the sanctuary of the church will be completed by this Sunday, among them the removal of the lectern to a place nearer the altar and arrangement of the altar table. Various societies and classes of the church have cooperated to make these changes possible.

The Trinity Lutheran church which now stands on Oak street and which erection and dedication is to be observed next week, was built and equipped at a total cost of $7,027, only a little more than congregations today expend for an organ for their churches. The plans for that church building cost but $2 fifty years ago and the lot on which the church stands cost only $700.

The old building records which are still preserved show but a small group of members, about 150, contributed to the building fund and among those contributors who are still members are Fred Breitwieser, Gustav Kalfahs and Albert Kuehl.

Founded Twice

The congregation of Trinity Lutheran church was founded twice, once in the early sixties of the last century in conjunction with the Menasha Trinity Lutheran congregation, and again, after it was found that such an arrangement was impractical, on a separate basis in Neenah in 1885 under the leadership of the Rev. C. F. Waldt who was at that time stationed in Oshkosh.

The first church was located at the corner of Washington avenue and Walnut street, a simple frame structure, built largely by volunteer labor and from lumber felled on the farms of some of the members. The building was completed in 1867 and served as a place of worship for over 20 years. Following the Rev. Mr. Waldt's pastorate, the Rev. W. Hagedorn, the Rev. Otto Hoyer, and the Rev. G. Denninger were pastors. With the acceptance of the call by the Rev. T. Gensicke, the work of building the present church was begun.

Trinity Lutheran Church of Neenah Maps Special Services To Observe Golden Anniversary

Neenah — Trinity Lutheran church, which will observe its fiftieth anniversary next week culminating in a jubilee service Oct. 23 is not preparing any elaborate observance of its half century existence because in 1940, two years hence, the diamond jubilee of the congregation will be held as the seventy-fifth anniversary is observed.

Simple but impressive will be the program for observance of this golden anniversary with special preparation services planned for Sunday morning, Oct. 16, in both the German and English services. The vesper song service by the choir and the children of the school will be held Friday evening, Oct. 21, exactly 50 years from the day of the dedication of the church building located on Oak street. The Rev. A. C. Haase, St. Paul, Minn., and the Rev. E. Behm, Town Forest, will be guest speakers at the jubilee service Sunday, Oct. 23.

The late Rev. Philipp Froehke who was pastor at St. Matthew's church, Appleton, was to have preached the anniversary sermon. "To God alone, the Glory" will be guiding theme of the jubilee observance as the congregation not only renews the historical story of the church but recognizes the Christian meaning of the church buildings on the anniversary of the erection and dedication "for it is only through such understanding that the true insight into the spiritual life of the congregation can be realized."

Pheasant Season To Open Saturday

Warden Reports Increased Number of Game Birds

Neenah—Hunters in Winnebago county will invade the uplands starting Saturday noon when the pheasant season opens.

Conservation Warden Arthur Chase, Oshkosh, reported today that prospects for good hunting are better than in previous years. He pointed out that there are more pheasants in the county uplands this year than last year, county road and gun clubs having planted a large number of birds during the year and the pheasants having fared well during the year.

The warden also pointed out that the kill will not be so heavy on the opening day because the season doesn't open until noon. He explained that the birds are out in the morning looking for feed and have returned to the brush by noon.

High water which hampered duck hunters when the season opened will not affect pheasant hunters, the warden observed, and he claimed that the pheasants have been able to take care of themselves during the flood period.

Hunters who aren't able to bring down a couple of pheasant cocks can shoot squirrels, the warden reported, for the squirrel season also opens Saturday. There are a lot of squirrels in the county, more than in previous years, he said. He explained that the squirrels had better luck with their young this summer.

The Crust of the Earth V-EARTHQUAKES

How is it possible for scientists to tell that an earthquake has taken place a thousand miles away before any word has come by telegraph, telephone or radio? How can they find out the exact spot of the quake even if no human being lives on the ground that has been shaken?

An earthquake sends out "waves" which travel through the earth's crust, and also through the earth by way of the substance under the crust. The waves do not travel at the same rate.

Railway tracks after an earthquake in India.

Dedicated instruments are used to record the waves. They are known as "seismographs," meaning "earthquake writers."

It is known that waves travel through rock layers at the rate of two miles per second. It also is known that earthquake waves travel through the earth at six and one-fourth miles per second when they pass under the earth's crust.

Let us suppose a seismograph station in Nova Scotia made a record of an earthquake at exactly four o'clock in the afternoon, then was silent for 10 minutes before a new record was made. If the waves came from the same quake (as no doubt would be the case) the men in Nova Scotia could figure the distance of the earthquake because they would know the difference in the rate of travel of the waves.

To tell the exact spot of an earthquake, it is necessary for three stations to report the facts. Then the spot can be found by drawing circles of the proper size on a map. The point at which all three circles meet is the point of the earthquake.

Thanks to the seismograph, we may quickly learn of an earthquake in a far place long before a cablegram comes. The cable might even be broken, and the broadcasting station shaken down, and still we could locate the quake.

Explosions of volcanoes sometimes cause earthquakes, but such quakes are not likely to be of the most dangerous kind. The strongest quakes appear to be due to the slipping of rock in the earth's crust.

Weak places exist in the earth's crust, places where there are deep cracks in the rock. If the rock slips along one of those cracks, it means an earthquake.

The cracks are caused by the shrinking of the earth. A slip along the line of one of those cracks may destroy a city and take the lives of thousands of human beings.

By Jimmie Fidler
BY JIMMIE FIDLER
Hollywood—Settin' Around (Twentieth Century-Fox): Every day, I receive letters from fans, complaining about the sameness of movies and today, I found this lot. It occurred to me that the sameness is easily explained. Every shooting script used in this studio must be okayed by Darryl Zanuck—originally a writer—and every one comes out of his hands bearing the distinct impress of his personal imagination, experience and tastes. He throws in the kind of comedy relief that he prefers, where he prefers to see it, and he changes each story situation to suit his own ideas. He is one of six such dictators in Hollywood—and those six men determine the public's screen menus.

Every studio has under contract an army of fine writers, brought to Hollywood because of their reputations for individuality. Once arrived in the studio, they learn that they must sacrifice individuality to the producer's pet formulae. At first they struggle—then they give in. After all, why rebel against a fate that pays $2,500 a week?

As long as this condition exists, Twentieth Century-Fox pictures, to stick to our example, will be Darryl Zanuck pictures. They're usually good pictures, because Mr. Zanuck happens to know his business—but even excellence can become monotonous when it is always achieved by the same recipe.

They were shooting outdoor scenes for "Kentucky" and I found Loretta Young enthroned on the lap of David Niven. I stayed a full half hour and when I left Loretta still sat there, as comfortably as when I arrived. I suggested to a friend who was with me that perhaps, he, too might like the life of a movie star, if jobs like Mr. Niven's went with it. He shook his head dubiously. "It looks like nice work," he said, "but I've got a foot that goes to sleep at the most inopportune moments. Maybe I couldn't qualify."

Here's one reason Alice Faye is so popular with the "little people" who count, picked up when I visited the "Talisman" set today. Last Saturday she won $25 in a football pool. Five dollars went to her hairdresser, five to her stand-in, five to the wardrobe girl and five to the script girl. She spent the other five herself—on coca colas for the entire crew.

Watched the Ritz Brothers—unrecognizable in seventeenth century velvets, shoulder-length wigs and curled mustaches—rehearsing a tavern brawl for "The Three Musketeers." Making careful aim, Harry Ritz pulled back a heavy iron cauldron which swung from the ceiling by a chain, let it fly and sent one of their assailants tumbling across the floor. But just as he did it, Ray Golden, the company gagman, yelled at him from the sidelines and Harry turned to see what he wanted. The kettle swung back, caught Mr. Ritz unaware, and knocked him flat. Harry picked himself up gingerly and, "What did you want?" he demanded. "Well," Golden gasped, "I was just going to suggest that it would be a funny gag for that pot to swing back and knock you down—and it was!"

On the "Little Princess" set, Shirley Temple as a bug's ear in an old fashioned riding habit and a bowler hat, was riding—trying beside me in a hillbilly costume, sighed: "I don't blame them," she whispered. "If I were brave enough, I'd yell, too until they gave me something prettier to wear."

They tell me a good one on Henry Fonda. When the "Jesse James" company was on location in the Ozarks, a young woman stopped him on the street. "Please stand still until I can get a look at you," she begged. "I've never seen a movie star before." Fonda was embarrassed, but complied—and she stared for a long moment. And then, as he started to walk on, she stopped him again, and, "Just which one are you, anyway?" she asked. (Copyright, 1938)

The population of Hawaii on June 30 of this year was placed at 411,485 or an increase of 14,770 over the previous year.

PARKER FINED
Lillian Rehbein, 1504 W. Franklin street, pleaded guilty of violating the city parking ordinance and was fined $1 and costs by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning.

Manitowoc Water Main Project Gets Approval
Madison—(AP)—The public service commission announced Thursday it has authorized the city of Manitowoc to install a 16-inch water main under the Manitowoc river and construct an underground storage tank. The improvements will cost $225,000. The commission said the new main under the river, supplementing those now in service, is necessary because wells have given out.

It will provide a water supply to the north side of the river. The commission fixed Nov. 1 in Madison for hearing on the application of the Cadott municipal water utility to increase its rates.

New York —(AP)—Heavy profit taking halted recently buoyant stock market industrials today, but utilities bounded over this barrier to new high ground for the past year.
Trading speeded up sufficiently in the forenoon to put the ticker tape behind on two occasions. While there were subsequent slow-downs, transfers approximated 1,900,000 shares.
Steels and motors bore the brunt of offerings. Several chemicals also weakened. Oils were again indifferent. Aircrafts usually kept their heads above water.
Despite individual strong spots, the losses of fractions to a point or so predominated at the close.
Bonds were uneven, as were commodities.

Wheat Prices in Upturns in Wake Of Downward Dip
Rallies Just Before Close Wipe Out Setbacks In Chicago
Chicago —(AP)—Late setbacks of wheat values here led to fractional net losses at times, but rallies ensued at the last.
A dearth of follow-up buying on advances was responsible for the late downturns. Weakness of Liverpool closing quotations counted also as a weight on the market here.
Receipts were: Wheat 27 cars; corn 413 and oats 50.
At the close, Chicago wheat futures were unchanged to 1 cent higher, Dec. 651-1/2, May 661, corn 1 off to 1/4 up, Dec. 441-1/2, May 48, and oats unchanged to 1 higher.

International Trucks
This new Cab-Over-Engine International is by no means just a converted conventional truck. It's a new truck from the ground up. It's all truck like every other International. It's a Cab-Over-Engine Truck in the fullest meaning of the term. The seat is directly over the engine, not alongside the rear of it. Instead of the standard hood, there is a maximum extra-loading space, with perfect load distribution on front and rear axles and all wheels. There is greater operating economy. The engine is completely accessible. The new cab provides greater comfort for the driver, and increased visibility.

New York —(AP)—Heavy profit taking halted recently buoyant stock market industrials today, but utilities bounded over this barrier to new high ground for the past year.
Trading speeded up sufficiently in the forenoon to put the ticker tape behind on two occasions. While there were subsequent slow-downs, transfers approximated 1,900,000 shares.
Steels and motors bore the brunt of offerings. Several chemicals also weakened. Oils were again indifferent. Aircrafts usually kept their heads above water.
Despite individual strong spots, the losses of fractions to a point or so predominated at the close.
Bonds were uneven, as were commodities.
